Ford bars giving Nixon tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An angry President Ford and Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski have blocked a move by Richard M. Nixon's lawyers to turn over the White House tapes to the former President.

White House officials, who declined to be identified for publication, indicated that Ford became upset when he learned that the lawyers, without Jaworski's approval, had ruled the tapes belonged to Nixon.

The officials said Ford fretted that his administration "was becoming tarnished" by the tapes issue and so, "he put his foot down and said 'I'm not going to have it.'"

Thus, in quick succession Thursday:

—Press Secretary J. F. terHorst announced that Nixon's White House counsel, J. Fred Buzhardt, who had participated in the informal ruling that the tapes belonged to Nixon, had tendered his resignation and Ford accepted.

—Jaworski's office said in a terse announcement that the White House had agreed to hold the remaining Nixon tapes and documents in its vaults while the issue was reviewed.

On Wednesday, Nixon's chief Watergate attorney, James St. Clair, who resigned that day, and Buzhardt ruled that the Nixon materials not yet subpoenaed and-or made public were his own property, presumably to dispose of as Nixon wished.

That announcement, channeled through the White House press office, erroneously said the decision had the endorsement of the special prosecutor and the Justice Department.

Jaworski's Thursday announcement indicated this was not the case, and White House officials suggested privately that Ford had been angered by "all this revival of the tapes issue."

Ford instructed chief of staff Alexander M. Haig, himself a holdover, to get Buzhardt's resignation, the sources said, because Ford could no longer rely for legal advice on "Watergate holdovers who are just not believable anymore." He also ordered the White House to consult with Jaworski and the ensuing statement, issued by Jaworski's office, said:

"Representatives of the White House and the special prosecutor met today to discuss the status of the tapes and documents of the administration of former President Nixon.

"It has been agreed that none of the files will be moved pending further discussion and the special prosecutor's office is satisfied with these arrangements."

MSAC names 1st woman to board

By BOB NAGEY
P-B Staff Writer

The Mt. San Antonio College board of trustees, defying a threatened legal move by its faculty, Thursday appointed a Walnut woman to a vacancy on the college board.

If the appointment is not challenged within 30 days, Mrs. Nancy Bennett of 539 N. Pierre Road, the wife of a local rancher and mother of three children, will become a trustee next month.

She will be the first woman to serve on the MSAC board since the district was established in 1946. She will fill the term of Lance D. Smith of La Puente who died two weeks ago.

Smith's term runs through next March.

But the faculty association had admonished the board even before the appointments were considered that unless the board chooses the unsuccessful candidate with the highest vote in the last board election, the teachers would petition to void the action.

Under a law passed last January, a board can make an appointment to an unexpired term unless protests are filed by at least 5 per cent of the registered voters in the district.

Since the sprawling college district which reaches from Baldwin Park to Pomona now has 200,000 registered voters, those who oppose the appointment would have to gather at least 10,000 signatures to succeed.

The person who would qualify under the faculty's highest vote formula is Charles Hall, an account representative for a manufacturer of educational materials, who was in the audience.

He as well as Judge William G. Martin of the Citrus Municipal Court were the other aspirants for the post.

The threat of legal action was relayed to the board in a letter as well as a presentation by Donald Greeley, president of the MSAC Faculty Association.

He said that upon the death of Smith, he called a meeting of the executive board of the association. The executive board took the position that unless the unsuccessful candidate with the highest vote in the last election was chosen by the board, the faculty would circulate petitions to void the appointment.

"The voice of the people should be followed," he told the trustees. "Whether this means appointing the person next in line in their preference, or a special election."

James D. Simpson, vice president in charge of business services, estimated that a special election would cost the district approximately $60,000 and could not be held until January.

Trustee William Temple, who had nominated Mrs. Bennett earlier, questioned Greeley closely.

"Would the faculty association want us to spend $60,000 to elect someone for just two months?" he asked. "What if after all that expense and effort the candidate of the faculty association loses?"

Greeley said the faculty association was not backing any one person but rather the process, and that he was merely presenting the stand of his group.

Board president Richard Todd called the proposal of the faculty association a "dangerous precedent."

Temple, in nominating Mrs. Bennett, said her appointment not only would be "in keeping with our tradition regarding representation by area" but also will "help to reaffirm our dedication to affirmative action, by reason of the fact that she will be the first woman ever to sit on this board."

He said that by tradition there has always been a member of the Walnut-La Puente community on the board. To do otherwise, he said, would upset the balance.

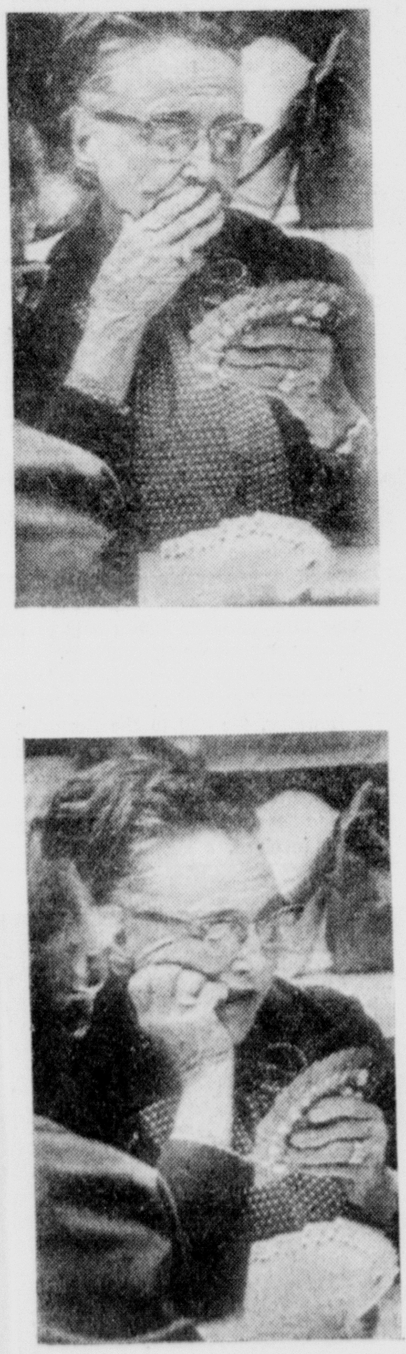

After the three nominations, the board retired to an executive session to deliberate the proposals. A half hour later Mrs. Bennett was appointed by unanimous choice.

TIME OUT FOR A KISS

A Turkish soldier kisses a child held up by his mother as Turks advanced into the eastern port of Famagusta Thursday. Turkish troops overwhelmed outnumbered defenders of the island today.

Chutist riding car tow line hurt in mishap

A 19-year-old Rowland Heights man is temporarily grounded from any parachute flying activity.

William Johnson of 1722 Los Padres was treated at Doctors Hospital, La Puente, for a broken leg and numerous head cuts after a freak accident on Blakeman Avenue Thursday.

According to sheriff's deputies, Johnson had harnessed himself into a parachute, and was being pulled along Blakeman Avenue with a tow line on a 16-year-old friend's car at 20 miles an hour.

The parachute had carried Johnson about 30 feet into the air when a sudden gust of wind caught the tow line and twisted it around a light standard.

Johnson instantly fell to the ground, the light standard snapped off about two feet from the ground, and hit him on the head.

Tot survives fall

PATERSON, N.J. (UPI) — Three-year old Yvonne Jackson fell five stories out of a Paterson housing project and survived, police said today.

The girl was in fair condition at St. Joseph's Hospital and Medical Center with a fractured pelvis.

WHAT NOW?

For Mrs. Howard G. Smith of Salem, Ore., bridge is a very serious business. She runs the gamut of emotions while playing a hand at a recent picnic held for Salem senior citizens.

Turks hold northeast; now ready to negotiate

By United Press International

Turkish troops thundered across Cyprus without resisetance today, reaching the west coast and securing the northeastern third of the island. Turkey said it had completed its military objectives and was now willing to end the fighting and negotiate for a permanent peace.

The Cyprus government abandoned its offices in the capital of Nicosia when Turkish planes bombed and strafed part of the capital, leaving it in flames. Heavy fighting erupted along the "green line" in the center of the city, a row of white painted oil drums separating Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities.

Tank-led Turkish troops secured the eastern port of Famagusta where Turkish Cypriots danced, wept and cheered as men and supplies rolled into the city at dawn.

On the western front, columns of armored troops backed by air and naval support smashed through feeble Greek Cypriot defenses on Morphou Bay, the western end of the Turkish "Attila line" that begins at Famagusta.

In Ankara, Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit met with his cabinet for two hours and told newsmen Turkish forces had fulfilled the battle plan.

"At 7 p.m. Turkish time (noon EDT) our military operation on Cyprus will have reached its objectives and will end," he said. "We will be available to continue negotiations any time after (the fighting ends)."

"We don't want partition. We want Cyprus to remain an independent state," Ecevit said. "Turkey believes there should be two autonomous administrations (Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot) on the island under a federal government."

Turkish Cypriot leader Rauf Denktash said the 60-hour renewal of fighting meant that "a federal state has been established on Cyprus. Its boundaries are marked by the Turkish army."

Greece had opposed federation but an angry Premier Constantine Karamanlis admitted Thursday that Greece was powerless to stop Turkey's military expansion on the island.

Diplomatic reports from London said there was no rush to reconvene the Geneva peace talks.

Drought could hit farm income, add to inflation

By United Press International

The drought which has withered crops in the nation's midlands could also eat away at farm incomes and add to worldwide inflation, according to economists.

An economist for the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco warned Thursday that farm income may take a nosedive after a good start in the early months.

"In the early spring excessive rainfall and plant disease caused delayed plantings, then a severe drought took its toll throughout the Midwest compounding damage from earlier flooding," economist Dean Chen said in a newsletter.

Chen said farm income might drop to $30 billion in 1974 compared to last year's record $32 billion.

But farm families will not be the only ones hard hit by the drought, which has destroyed much of the corn in the nation's five-state corn belt. The implications, according to one economist, are worldwide.

The drought will add to world inflationary problems in 1975, according to Dr. Louis Thompson, a highly-regarded agricultural economist and associate dean of agriculture at Iowa State University.

Swift approval expected in state Senate

Bill easing rape trials for victim scores triumph

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The author of the legislature's major bill to soften the trauma suffered by rape victims predicted today it will win easy final Senate approval and the signature of Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The bill (SB1678) by Sen. Alan Sieroty, D-Van Nuys, was passed overwhelmingly by the male-dominated Assembly Thursday despite charge that it would jeopardize the rights of accused rapists.

The measure would limit substantially the instances when a rape victim could be compelled to disclose in court intimate details of her sex life. It was returned to the Senate for concurrence in Assembly amendments on a 67-5 vote.

Assemblyman Raymond T. Seeley, R-Blythe, the bill's Assembly sponsor, said the measure would "correct a bad situation" currently in which "the victim is the one on trial much more than the defendant."

But Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, chairman of the Criminal Justice Committee, contended the bill "goes too far" and "denies a person accused of rape of a fair trial."

Robbins predicted the Senate would vote final legislative approval of the bill next Tuesday. He also said aides to Gov. Ronald Reagan have said the governor "will sign it fast."

Noting only 8,000 of the estimated 800,000 rapes in California each are reported, Robbins said his bill would encourage rape victims to inform authorities about rapes because they will face far less harassment by police, district attorneys and judges.

The bill would permit questions by defense attorneys on the rape victim's past sex life only in unusual cases and after a lengthy legal process out of the jury's presence.

Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, argued the measure would deny a defendant the right to introduce evidence which could prove his innocence.

But amendments by Knox to broaden the cases in which past sex experiences of the victim could be examined in court were defeated on a 23-50 vote.

Currently, a rape victim must disclose details of her past sex life in cross-examination by the defense attorney. Women liberationists contend a woman's past sexual relations are not relevant in a rape trial.

4 cities empowered to start regional transportation

Representatives of four West End cities approved a document Thursday that gave them full power in establishing a regional transportation service, rejecting a substitute document with limited power recommended by a deputy county counsel.

Mayors Harold Hayes of Montclair and Abner Haldeman of Upland, City Councilwoman Eileen Carter of Chino and City Councilman Robert Abel of Ontario refused to accept a second draft suggested by Alan Marks, deputy San Bernardino County counsel and legal adviser to the San Bernardino Associated Governments (SANBAG).

Marks' draft would allow only association status to the West Valley Transit Service Authority, the agency composed of the cities of Montclair, Chino, Upland, Ontario, Claremont and Pomona and county Districts 2 and 4 to bring busing services to local residents.

The second draft also limited the group's powers of implementation.

The representatives felt that the power to implement was crucial to the function of the group. They were unanimous in the opinion that this was to be an action group to provide bus services to the West End, not a passive organization designed only for study.

As the meeting in the Montclair council chambers began, Haldeman quickly voiced his objections to Marks' review and restructuring of the proposed agreement among the participating agencies to establish a join powers authority for the regional bus system.

Wes McDaniel, executive director of SANBAG, failed to submit the agreement to county counsel before the participating cities' representatives discussed it at a July 25 meeting. Subsequently, the councils of each West End city approved the agreement as presented at that meeting. Only Claremont, which held its regular council session after the recommended change, delayed in approving the agreement. Pomona also took no action.

Marks reviewed the agreement which was to establish the organization as a study and action body without knowledge that it had already been accepted by the principal West End contributors.

The attorney created a new agreement that was more complex than the primary document submitted, and limited the group's responsibility to study.

"The basic issue is whether this group was meant to be a joint powers authority or a study group. It is not a legal matter, but a matter of policy. The (first) agreement did not contain all the requirements for an authority," said Marks.

"If you choose to have a joint powers authority, this agreement and the old agreement would both be inadequate. If you wish to be merely an association, this (new) agreement is adequate."

Mrs. Carter protested the change of intention in the new agreement, saying the original statement "was a simple one. It used the word authority and the word implementation because we felt it was necessary to what we were attempting to do."

Hayes pointed out that implementation was essential because such power was necessary in order to contract for services for busing residents. We added "We want to be more than just a planning agency. We want to put teeth into this organization."

It was suggested that the representatives aprove the second agreement with the inclusion of the phrase "to pursue the implementation" of a busing plan. This brought on outcries from Haldeman and Mrs. Carter.

"I cannot sign a document that my City Council has not approved. I do not have such authority," Mrs. Carter stated.

City Manager Ken Hunter of Ontario commented, "We don't want a report. We want a transportation system to serve the people."

With this, Haldeman moved to "stand on our primary document as a beginning base for the obviously needed secondary documents. I want to see this thing expedited. We don t want to quibble over words."

John Shone, county highway engineer, sat on the board in the absence of county Supervisors Robert Townsend and Daniel Mikesell. He abstained from voting until being given official alternate status by the supervisors.

Councilman Hal Bailin of Upland advised Shone to tell the supervisors, "we will not operate well if the county is in, but does not show up (to meetings). If the county is going to participate, it should participate."

In another motion, the group instructed the city managers and attorneys of each West End city to study a secondary document for the official establishment of a joint powers agreement.

SWINGERS

Debby Buesse, 14, left, and Melody Tugue, 15, set a world record this week when they concluded a 105-hour marathon swing in city park in Brea. The old mark was 100 hours. During their time on the swing, the two girls accepted monetary pledges for the benefit of Brea's Pop Warner Football League.

Gunman robs woman in eatery parking lot

A 37-year-old California Institution for Men woman employe was robbed by a man who threatened to kill her when she refused to hand over her car keys early this morning outside of Shane's Casa Dinero in Cucamonga.

Mrs. Marian Larrabee of Alta Loma told West End sheriff's deputies that she had left the Cucamonga restaurant at Archibald Avenue and Foothill Boulevard about 1:30 a.m. when she was approached by a man holding a blue-steel revolver. She said the gunman ordered her to hand over her purse and her car keys.

Mrs. Larrabee said the man grabbed her purse and she held onto the handle. The gunman and the woman struggled a few moments until he threatened to shoot her.

Mrs. Larrabee said she gave the gunman her purse, containing a small amount of cash, her CIM identification, and other items, but held onto her car keys. The gunman told her to run because he was going to shoot her.

Mrs. Larrabee said she ran toward several other cars in the parking lot as the gunman discovered the car keys were not in her purse. She said the gunman shouted he was coming after her and was going to kill her.

The woman told deputies that the gunman, whom she described as a Negro, about 25, 6 feet, 160 pounds wearing a blue shirt and navy blue bell-bottom trousers, was distracted by other people coming out of the restaurant and ran from the area.

Man with knife attacks woman and her visitor

A man armed with a large knife attacked a 26-year-old Ontario woman and her male visitor in her home at 5017 Mission Blvd. Thursday night for no apparent reason, West End sheriff's deputies reported.

Miss Dean Brownle told deputies that she was visiting with Esren Silva, 31, of 605 Elm St., Ontario, about 9:30 p.m. when a man suddenly appeared holding a large knife.

She said the knife-wielding man slashed at Silva several times and punched her in the nose. Silva suffered two minor stab wounds and Miss Brownle suffered a broken nose in the attack.

Deputies said the two victims were given medical treatment at the scene. The couple were unable to give a detailed description of their attacker.

2 men hurt in 2-vehicle crash

Two men were injured Thursday afternoon when a pickup truck and a car collided broadside in the intersection of Archibald Avenue and Mission Boulevard in Ontario, police reported.

Carlos Provencio De Lao, 48, of 1050 E. Holt Blvd., Ontario, the driver of the pickup truck, and Loutry Kelada Abu-Assal, 47, of Los Angeles, the driver of the car suffered minor injuries and were transported to Ontario Community Hospital by ambulance for treatment. Both were later released.

Airport bombing project of more than 1--police

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — There is apparently more than one person involved in the mysterious "Aliens of America" which claims responsibility for the bombing of the Los Angeles International Airport last week, police say.

The FBI was making voiceprint analyses today of tape recordings, in which a voice identifying himself as the "military commander of Aliens of America" demands changes in the laws governing aliens.

In the latest tape, found in a trash can after a telephone call to the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner late Wednesday night, a voice with a Middle Eastern accent, giving the name "Isaac Rasim," said that unless the groups' demands are met in three months "two tons of deadly nerve gas" stored in St. Louis would be taken to Washington, D.C., and used to "destroy the entire personnel of Capitol Hill."

In earlier tapes, a voice said he planted the bomb that exploded in a locker in an international flights check-in area of the airport last week, killing three persons and injuring 36, the worst bomb attack ever on a U.S. air passenger terminal.

There have been several messages recorded on tape cassettes, and telephone calls to news media. One voice seems to be involved in almost all cases, and has given investigators details that would be known only to the bomber or someone close to him.

"He definitely knows what's he's talking about," an FBI spokesman said.

However, the call to the Herald-Examiner Wednesday night was by what sounded like another voice, said Police Cmdr. Peter Hagan, causing investigators to believe that more than one person is involved.

State mediator says RTD strike reopened

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Striking bus drivers and the Southern California Rapid Transit District headed back to the negotiating table today for the first talks since the walkout began, with a state mediator saying they were far from agreement.

"A super effort will be made to settle the gut issues —wages and hours of work," said state mediator Thomas McCarthy.

"It's too early to tell how long the talks will go on," he said. "They're as far apart as any groups I've ever seen."

He said the RTD's mechanics, a separate union also on strike, were tentatively expected to join negotiations next week, and he voiced hopes that agreement could be reached by the end of next week.

The drivers and mechanics struck at midnight Sunday, shutting down the RTD, the nation's fourth largest mass transportation system, which serves Los Angeles and parts of Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

Senate votes to end daylight savings time

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted to end year-round daylight saving time and to authorize a $20 billion, 10-year, research and development program for energy selfsufficiency in the United States.

The repeal of winter daylight saving time passed on a voice vote as an amendment to a larger energy bill passed 78 to 0 Thursday. The change back to standard time was sponsored by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan. It would exempt November, December, January and February from summer time.

The research and development program for non-nuclear energy alternatives was also added as an amendment to the Energy Reorganization Act under sponsorship of Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

Final action on the entire bill is pending.

Fellow merchants aid neighbor in robbery

A number of Ontario merchants were credited with capturing a thief who took money from Johnson's Clothing Store at 226 N. Euclid Ave. Thursday morning while the owner was momentarily away, police reported.

Gary Dennis Borens, 39, of 656 N. D St., Ontario, this morning was booked in the West End Jail awaiting arraignement on a charge of burglary after he was captured in the 100 block of N. Euclid Avenue by a group of irate merchants.

According to police, Mrs. Claudia Johnson, owner of the clothing store, had just opened her business about 9 a.m. and went next door to get change from another merchant when she saw the suspect enter her vacant store.

Mrs. Johnson said she went back to her store to confront the suspect and noticed that a small amount of cash was missing from her cash register. Mrs. Johnson said the suspect ran to the Drew Carriage House at 208 N. Euclid Ave., and she followed yelling, "Stop that man, he just robbed my store."

Police said that Howard Eaders and Tom Lucas, Drew Carriage House employes, heard Mrs. Johnson shouting and ran after the suspect along with several other nearby merchants. Eaders and Lucas managed to chase the suspect down the alley almost to Holt Boulevard, and finally grab him.

Police were called and arrived just as the merchants brought the suspect back to Mrs. Johnson's.

Football story is subject of P-B supplement

ABC's coverage of college football and Monday night pro football is the cover and cover close-up subject of TV Week in Sunday's Progress-Bulletin.

The regular season for the collegians on ABC kicks off Sept. 7, as Tennessee goes against NCLA.

In the professional ranks, ABC has an expanded schedule of 14 NFL Monday night football telecasts beginning Sept. 16.

The cover story also includes a schedule for professional as well as college games to be telecast.

Ford invites black solons to parley

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has invited all 16 black members of the House to meet with him Wednesday to discuss his views on civil rights and legislative matters, it was learned today.

Earlier this week Ford personally telephoned Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., chairman of the black caucus, to arrange a meeting.

The caucus has not been at the White House since March 25, 1971 and it took 14 months for the group, then headed by Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr., D-Mich., to arrange the session with former President Nixon.

PROCAR plans scale auto races

The Pomona Radio Operated Club of Auto Racing (PROCAR) will stage a race at Pomona Valley Center, Pomona, Saturday.

It will start at noon under the direction of club President Dick Camp. Practice will start at 9:30 a.m.

A number of short races will be followed by three main events for novice, amateur and expert drivers racing open-wheeled (Indianapolis type) cars. There will be a figure eight race for stock bodied cars.

PROCAR is a club for radio controlled racing enthusiasts in both 1-12th scale and ⅛th scale, which will be raced Saturday. The club is about three years old and has 30 members who range in age from 13 to 55. Membership is open to anyone interested in racing. Meetings are held the first Monday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at 300 Pomona Mall West.

AN OPEN DOOR

Joe Parris, left, of the real estate brokerage firm of Parris and Robins, opens the door of the new Montclair Chamber of Commerce office to welcome chamber President Ken Wright and Mayor Harold Hayes. The office is located at 8900 Benson Ave., Suite H, Montclair.

Car hits wall; driver injured

An Ontario man was seriously injured Thursday when his car hit a concrete retaining wall along the San Bernardino Freeway near Euclid Avenue, Ontario.

Thomas Pogorelc, 46, of 1503 Madera Ave., was admitted to Ontario Community Hospital's intensive care unit.

He was driving east on the freeway when his car crossed two traffic lanes and hit the wall, said highway patrolmen.

Chamber moves offices to new suite in center

The Montclair Chamber of Commerce has moved its offices to the Arrowben Center at 8900 Benson Ave., Montclair, in order to provide more office space and be closer to the core of the city.

Chamber President Ken Wright said the staff moved into the new building, Suite H of a business office complex, early this week.

"We wanted to better orient ourselves to the business community by getting closer to the center of the city and closer to the shopping areas," said Wright.

The office is 20 by 60 feet. It was donated by the real estate broker firm of Joe Parris and George Robins. The two are property managers-owners, brokers and lease agents of the center.

Mayor Harold Hayes congratulated the chamber on its new office shortly after the move. The office had been on Central Avenue.

EPISCOPAL BATTLE

After two days of meetings in an emergency session, the House of Bishops of the Episcopal Church ruled Thursday that the ordination of 11 women as priests is not valid. Sister Alla Rennee Bozarth-Campbell E.O., Minneapolis, left, one of the ordained priests and The Right Rev. John M. Allin, presiding bishop of the church, follow proceedings. The bishops urged delay on further ordinations of women.

President vetoes 2 bills; threatens transit measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has taken the economic initiative by vetoing two bills as inflationary and threatening to veto a third, while Congress moves quickly to give him the inflation-monitoring task force he wants.

Both the House and Senate Banking Committees quickly approved Ford's request for the new "jawboning" agency Thursday, and both houses are tentatively scheduled to consider the bill Monday.

The President vetoed a bill Thursday to spend $47 million on animal research programs, saying it was inflationary. His first veto, for the same reason, was againt pay increases for U.S. marshals.

Ford has also threatened to veto a $20 billion mass transportation bill unless it is cut almost in half. Liberals have offered a $15 billion compromise, but Ford has not indicated whether he will accept it.

Also coming up for his approval or veto are the major appropriations bills, on which Congress is still working.

Many members of Congress are skeptical about Ford's proposed task force, but say it should be approved because Ford wants it and that even if it does no good, it would not do any harm either.

The vote in the House Banking Committee was 27 to 7, but no one spoke in favor of it during a 50-minute meeting.

The House is expected to rubberstamp Ford's request to set up a monitoring agency of top presidential advisers and Cabinet members to coordinate the administration's anti-inflation fight.

Passage by the Senate may not be so easy as by the House.

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., and other liberals want to strengthen the bill in varying ways.

The Stevenson amendments were defeated in committee, but he indicated he would try on the Senate floor to give the task force subpoena power and authority to delay price or wage increases 45 days, with an additional 45-day delay if necessary while it gathers evidence and holds hearings on the increase.

The task force would not have the power to permanently control wages and prices.

Industry would be required to keep certain records and to make specific report. The task force would be empowered to subpoena necessary records.

Ford asked for $1 million to run the task force, but the Stevenson bill would give him $5 million.

Ford's top economists have repeatedly said they do not want any power to subpoena or to delay wage and price increases. They say the agency should be able to accomplish its purpose through publicity.

They also do not want the country to get the impression the Ford administration is even thinking about re-imposing wage and price controls.

"Business and labor are sick of being bounced in and out of mandatory controls," said Kenneth Rush, Ford's economic coordinator, at Senate hearings Thursday.

Ford gets foreign policy success

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Thursday moved closer to achieving one foreign policy success that eluded former President Nixon —better trade relations with the Soviet Union and settlement of the Jewish emigration question.

It would come through a compromise with members of Congress, led by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who insisted that the Russians change their emigration policy toward Jews before Congress would grant the most-favored-nation status necessary for improving trade.

The Russians have been trying to fight a wave of Jewish emigrants, many of them well educated and leaders in scientific and cultural fields, who wish to leave the U.S.S.R.

The Soviets contended it is an internal problem, a point made earlier this year by Nixon, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark.

Episcopal bishops rule

Women's ordination invalidated

CHICAGO (UPI) — The ordination of 11 women as Episcopal priests was invalidated Thursday by the church's House of Bishops, which also decried the actions of the bishops who participated in the tradition-breaking ordination.

A resolution, passed 126-10, by the House of Bishops said House members "decry their (the bishops involved in the ordination) acting in violation of the collegiality of the House of Bishops as well as the legislative process of the whole church."

"Further, we express our conviction that the necessary conditions for valid ordination to the priesthood ... were not fulfilled on the occasion in question," the resolution said.

The resolution said that the sincerity of the women who were ordained and the bishops involved was not to be questioned but it noted that the action could "expose the church to serious consequences unforseen and undesired by anyone."

The bishops urged that there be no further attempts to ordain women until the church's general convention, which meets in 1976, decides whether women can be elevated to the priesthood.

Shortly after the resolution's passage, a group of bishops dropped charges they had brought against three of the bishops participating in the Philadelphia ceremony. The three had faced possible censure, suspension or ouster in separate proceedings for their controversial actions.

"I am sure they meant to be generous," said the Rt. Rev. Daniel M. Corrigan, one of the bishops who participated in the ordination service in Philadelphia.

But he and the Rt. Rev. Jose Antonio Ramos of Costa Rica, who observed but did not participate in the service, agreed that the House had failed to deal with the real issue.

"It was a put-off decision," Corrigan said.

Both Corrigan and Ramos said they would not ordain women until after the 1976 church convention, but said that they may reconsider if the convention refuses to allow women to become priests.

The other bishops involved in the ordination were the Rt. Rev. Edward Welles II, former bishop of western Missouri, and the Rt. Rev. Robert L. DeWitt, former bishop of Pennsylvania.

The Rt. Rev. John Allin, presiding bishop of the House, said he felt the church was responding to the issue.

"We are awkward, we are sluggish, but we are responding," Allin told a news conference.

Police want in Teamsters

VERNON, Calif. (UPI) — The 53-man police force in this Los Angeles suburb voted unanimously Thursday to join the Teamsters union, the first police force in California to do so.

Despite the union membership "we are police officers, we do not strike and we will carry out our job as required by law," said officer Howard Stolan, spokesman for the Police Officers Association.

Stolan said the police joined the Teamsters because they could not afford to hire attorneys on their own to negotiate with the city. The officers currently have just begun the second year of a two-year contract, which expires next July.

Assassination attempt on official thwarted

MIAMI (UPI) — An assassination attempt on Jamaica's national security minister, who is leading a crackdown on drug smuggling in his country, failed Thursday night because newspaper warpping kept a live grenade from exploding in his car.

The official, Eli Matalon, became suspicious of the bulky package and summoned authorities who defused the bomb.

The Dade County sheriff's bomb squad said the newspaper contained a "Russian or foreign made type of military fragmentation grenade." A technician said the grenade was live and the pin had been removed.

Matalon found the package on the floor of the car when he left the temporary offices of the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration. He had gone there to express his sympathy for the seven persons killed and 15 injured in the collapse of the FDEA's regional headquarters Aug. 5.

Theodore Swift, FDEA public information officer, said Matalon picked up the package but became alarmed at the size, weight and shape of the object inside. He replaced the package on the floor of the auto and went back to summon aid.

David Connolly, assistant FDEA regional director, carefully opened the parcel wide enough to see that it contained a grenade and called the bomb squad. FDEA agents cordoned off the area around the car to protect passersby from injury if the grenade exploded.

A bomb squad technician who replaced the pin in the grenade, making it harmless, said only the paper wrapping holding down the trigger lever kept the grenade from exploding.

Inland counties told to up smog standards

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Inland counties in Southern California have been ordered to raise their smog measuring standards to conform to those used by Los Angeles County.

The directive stemmed from last month's revelation that the Air Pollution Control District in Los Angeles County measured the smog level differently from those in surrounding counties.

The result was that Los Angeles County had fewer smog alerts because of the way the oxidants were measured.

The state Air Resources Board said Thursday the order, directed to counties surrounding Los Angeles County, is an interim step until it could resolve the confusion surrounding the medical effects of high smog values and the various ways oxidants are measured.

The board had previously considered a recommendation that Los Angeles County lower its levels to conform with the other counties.

The ultimate goal of the ARB is to achieve uniformity at all governmental levels in measuring smog throughout the state.

Smog alerts had been called when ozone levels reached .20 parts per million for first stage alerts, .40 ppm for the second and .60 for the third, based on a one-hour average.

Following the board's action Thursday, inland counties will raise their first, second and third stage alert levels to .25 ppm, .50 ppm and .75 ppm.

The pollution levels were set last year by the ARB at the urging of the federal Environmental Protection Agency under the Clean Air Act.

The board also:

—Formed a committee to discover the best method of measuring ozone so that controls could be imposed throughout the state.

—Asked the Health Department's Air Quality Advisory Committee to review the different smog alert stages and their relationship to health.

Ehrlichman perjury trial delayed

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — John Ehrlichman, former top aide to ex-President Nixon, argued Thursday that his trial on a perjury charge subjects him to double jeopardy, since he has already been convicted of a related charge in federal court in Washington.

The start of his trial was postponed until at least Jan. 6, to take place after the Watergate cover-up trial in Washington, in which he is also a defendant.

Ehrlichman was convicted of perjury for lying to a federal grand jury about his knowledge of the Ellsberg burglary by the White House "plumbers." U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica sentenced him to 20 months to five years in prison.

The perjury charge against Ehrlichman here — for allegedly lying to a county grand jury about his knowledge of the breakin —is all that remains of charges of burglary and conspiracy against Ehrlichman, and White House aides G. Gordon Liddy, Egil "Bud" Krogh and David Young.

The charges were brought in the break-in at the Beverly Hills office of a psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis Fielding, in an effort to photograph the records of Daniel Ellsberg, who leaked the Pentagon Papers.

Both Richard Nixon and John Ehrlichman were mum today on Ehrlichman's subpoenaing the former president to appear as a witness at the Watergate cover-up trial, the first legal action against Nixon since he left office a week ago.

Nixon remained in seclusion at the former Western White House here. Aides said they had nothing to say about the subpoena, obtained by Ehrlichman, one of Nixon's most trusted and powerful lieutenants when he was in office.

Ehrlichman, in Los Angeles, said he could say nothing about the subpoena, under court order.

"I am under a very strict gag order from (U.S. District Court) Judge (John J.) Sirica and can say nothing about that case at all," Ehrlichman said.

CR call for Nixon return

Phony entry causes some embarrassment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The item, routinely dropped into the Congressional Record, seemed to praise former President Richard Nixon and recommended that President Ford appoint his predecessor vice president and then resign.

But it was a phony, slipped into Thursday's record aside the routine items in the staid daily diary of Congress.

It caused more anger than laughter in the House, and one of the angriest congressman was Earl Landgrebe, R-Ind., a staunch Nixon backer. The item was under Landgrebe's name.

The phony entry said:

"Mr. Speaker, former President Nixon's mother was a saint, by his own admission in his farewell message to the White House staff. But he ommitted mention of his own saintly qualities in that wonderful and touching address.

"Richard Nixon was profane, but more often he was simply unintelligible or irrelevant. He bombed Indochina back into the stone age, but he owned and loved a beautiful Irish setter, King Timahoe. He impounded funds intended for basic human needs, but he could play three different songs on the piano.

"A terrible mistake has been made. The bloodthirsty media have wrought a heinous crime on the American people by viciously distorting the harmless tale of Watergate. Mr. Nixon is no criminal, but a patriot, loyal to his friends, determined not to embarrass his country. Who, after all, was he bugging at the DNC? Leftist fellow-travelers, Mr. Speaker. By God, I hope he listened closely.

"Mr. Speaker, Mr. Ford must choose a vice president. To restore to a nation cheated of its rightful, right-thinking and right-leaning leadership, an act of great statesmanship, compassion and wisdom by Mr. Ford would be his appointment of Richard Nixon as his vice president and his own subsequent resignation of the presidency. By this act our 38th president will leave office with a spotless record and will have courageously taken one remarkable action for which he shall never be forgotten."

Speaker Carl Albert said he meant to "get to the bottom of this matter." Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio asked the Justice Department to investigate and prosecute.

And Landgrebe got unanimous consent to have the phony expunged from the cloth-bound record, but the day-to-day version, was already on its way to libraries, editors and other subscribers

ABA against immunity for ex-President

HONOLULU (UPI) — The American Bar Association has gone on record as opposing legal immunity for former President Richard M. Nixon.

On a voice vote and without debate the ABA's 340-member House of Delegates Thursday approved a resolution which outgoing ABA President Chesterfield Smith said resulted from disclosures about Nixon and Watergate.

The resolution, substituted for two other stronger resolutions, said:

"Whereas, he foundation of the American system of law is equal justice under law ... be it resolved, that the American Bar Association continue its dedication to the principle of fair, just and impartial application and enforcement of the law regardless of the position or status of any individual alleged to have violated the law."

Smith had predicted that the House of Delegates would put the 185,000 member lawyer group on record through the resolution against granting Nixon legal immunity. But he said it was proper for the resolution not to mention anyone by name.

"Although it is aimed at the revelations about Nixon, it enunciates a general principle of law," he said.

A second Watergate-related resolution was also approved without debate. It stated that "all applicable disciplinary rules apply to lawyers at all times, whether or not acting in their professional capacity, and calls upon all attorneys engaged in political activity or policy-making positions in government to recognize and adhere to their professional ethical responsibilities."

DOUBLE JEOPARDY CLAIM

Claiming double jeopardy because of his conviction in Washington, former White House advisor John D. Ehrlichman, left, entered a new plea of innocent through his West Coast attorney Douglas Dalton.

Fountain back with owners

LONG BEACH, California (UPI)—An antique Italian brass fountain, valued at $150,000, has been returned to its owners after parts were stolen last June and sold as scrap metal to a Japanese dealer.

Parts of the 300-pound Roman fountain were sold to a scrap metal dealer for shipment to Japan, where they were recovered by authorities. The fountain cleared a U.S. Customs inspection Thursday and was to be examined by its owners Monday.

The Marriot Hotel chain purchased the fountain in Rome and plans to install it at its new hotel in Newport Beach, Calif.

Argument over fish leads to fatal shooting

FONTANA (UPI) — Minnie Lee Tisby, 50, was allegedly shot to death by Walter Thomas Scott, 54, during an argument over the price of a fish.

Scott was arrested 30 minutes after the shooting Wednesday night and booked on suspicion of murder.

Authorities said Thursday Mrs. Tisby sold a fish to Juanita Radden for $10 and then returned $3 in exchange for a religious book. Scott, who had accompanied the victim, allegedly shot Mrs. Tisby as they argued over how much was paid for the fish.

Wife backed him up, but 2 weeks late

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Willie Black paid the $25 fine for speeding, but he thinks his wife proved Thursday that he was right all along.

Black was stopped by police two weeks ago for driving 90 miles an hour in a 55 m.p.h. zone. He told police he was rushing his wife, Barbara to a hospital because she was about to give birth.

But the Blacks' infant failed to arrive, and Wednesday Black did not contest the $25 fine levied by County Judge Hort Soper.

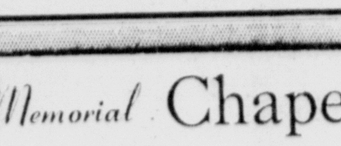

Thursday, Mrs. Black gave birth to a daughter.

House values up

The average value of houses has increased by 30 per cent in Texas during the past five years. A Texas A & M University survey showed less than one quarter of the owners have raised their insurance coverage.

FTC rules milk ads are deceiving

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission said today a major milk advertising campaign was deceiving consumers with claims that everyone needs to drink milk and that it prevents colds or arthritis.

The campaign featured swimmer Mark Spitz, baseball star Vida Blue, actor Ray Bolger and others all plugging milk for the California Milk Producers Advisory Board. The case has implications for the dairy industry's national promotional efforts.

The action was originally proposed by the FTC on April 10 and made formal today. The two sides were unable to reach a settlement and a judicial process will begin within the FTC.

Besides the star endorsements, the commercials included an announcer saying that "everybody needs milk." The campaign said milk consumption is beneficial for all individuals, regardless of their state of health, and the FTC said in fact that is not true.

Instead, it said milk drinking can be detrimental to individuals with "health problems such as certain allergies and symptomatic lactose intolerance." Milk drinking "will not prevent and will not lessen the probabilities of contracting colds or arthritis," it added.

The ad campaign, the FTC complained, was unfair, false, misleading and deceptive.

Commissioner Mayo J. Thompson filed a strongly worded dissent, saying there was no evidence from other government agencies of a widespread problem with milk drinking and it appeared the FTC was "practicing medicine without a license."

"For most Americans milk is, I understand, a highly beneficial food," Thompson said. "Until there is action by those who are more knowledgeable here than us, I would have us stay our hand in so complex a field as whether milk, man's primal food, is in fact injurious to some small percentage of us."

British proposal

Business' denounce nationalization plans

LONDON (UPI) — Business leaders today denounced Prime Minister Harold Wilson's minority Labor government's sweeping plans to nationalize British industry.

If industry is placed under government control "the outlook is raging inflation, jobs at risk and low growth," said Ralph Bateman, president of the Confederation of British Industry.

He said extended state control was no answer to the problems of British industry already hurt by heavy taxation and price controls.

Britain's Industry Minister Anthony Wedgwood-Benn disclosed government plans in a white paper released Thursday. The key proposal was the establishment of a National Enterprise Board which would supervise government takeovers of private firms.

The proposals also recommended voluntary planning agreements under which the management of major companies would invite its workers as well as government representatives to discuss the firm's future on an annual basis.

The proposals, a watered-down version of nationalization plans announced early this year by Wilson, have to be approved by parliament, where the Labor party is outnumbered.

Wide sections of British economic activity already have been under state-control for years. They include the power, railroad and steel industries, the major airlines and sections of the oil industry.

The program did not specify which firms the government planned to take over. But indications from the Labor party have included the troubled shipbuilding yards, ports and possibly heavy engineering and automotive plants.

Prizes, sale highlight grand opening

William Shatner, star of the television show Star Trek, will appear at the store from 4 to 7 p.m. Aug. 31 to sign autographs and welcome visitors.

The new store, the sixth in the Miller's chain, opened Tuesday in what store officials described as an "overwhelming success."

At one point Tuesday, some shoppers had to be asked to wait outside so that the store would not violate occupancy regulations.

Located at 9460 Central Ave., the new store is holding a grand opening and back-to-school sale through Sept. 25 on men's, women's and children's name brand clothing.

As part of the opening festivities, a 73-foot hot air balloon is tethered in the store's parking lot and plans still call for the balloon to fly around the valley later this month. Plans for the balloon to take off have been delayed due to poor wind conditions, said officials.

The store is giving away a variety of free gifts each hour during the official grand opening period through Aug. 25. A new Chevrolet Vega will be given away on Spet. 29.

In addition to clothing, the store also carries a wide assortment of sporting goods and backpacking gear, and also has a boot and shoe department.

The new store is the largest in the Miller's chain, covering 24,000 square feet. The shopping area of the store is completely finished, although work on the exterior of the building is continuing.

Other stores in the Miller's chain are located in San Bernardino, Riverside, Orange, Whittier and East Los Angeles.

Operating hours for the Montclair store are 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturdays and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sundays.

Called 'Watergate Hills'

Convicted Watergate burglars to build housing development

MIAMI (UPI) — Miami builder John Priestes, fresh from a six-months prison term for bribery, and three convicted Watergate burglars plan to build a housing development in central Florida to be called "Watergate Hills."

Priestes was convicted of offering bribes to an aide of U.S. Sen. Edward Gurney and served six months in prison. His associates are Bernard Barker, Eugenio Martinez and Virgilio Gonzales, all members of the Watergate burglary team.

Priestes said he will direct construction and the others will handle sales.

Asked why the name was chosen for the $7 million project near Lake Wales, Fla., Priestes told a news conference Wednesday, "there is a lot of water and a lot of hills there."

Priestes, Martinez and Gonzales became friends while in federal prison at Eglin Air Force Base. Barker was released from the facility on the same day Priestes arrived last January, but he and Priestes had business dealings previously.

"I have to make a living," said Barker. "I have a lot of attorney bills and I can't think of any better way to do it than through the sweat of your brow."

"This is perfect rehabilitatin," he added.

Priestes also has testified before the Watergate grand jury in Washington about a $25,000 contribution he made to the Committee to Re-Elect the President in 1972.

He said he expected the participation of Barker, Martinez and Gonzales to be an asset.

"I think it'll definitely help sales," he said. "Bernie is regarded as something of an international hero and I'm trying to climb out of a hole as a local villain."

Barker, discussing his sales approach to customers, added, "We promise not to bug them."

Pasadena granted stay on contempt

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An appeal court Thursday granted a stay of a federal judge's order holding the Pasadena School Board in contempt of court of allegedly thwarting a court-ordered school integration plan.

U.S. District Court Judge Manuel Real on Monday held the board in contempt and ordered it to fire three administrators, allegedly hired without complying with his earlier order to increase the number of black, or other minority race, administrators. He gave the board until Saturday, under penalty of a $500-a day fine after that.

The board appealed to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, saying it was impossible to replace the administrators in less than a week. Real's order is being appealed to higher courts and an appeal is proceeding asking for relief from the "Pasadena Plan" imposed by Real.

Judge Stanley N. Barnes, of the court of appeals, stayed Real's order until the full threejudge panel can rule on the appeal, or until Agu. 30, whichever comes first.

Bus line posts reward for info on hijackers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Greyhound Lines, Inc., has offered a $5,000 reward for information leading to the three men who hijacked a bus, robbed passengers and raped one young rider.

The bus was hijacked Sunday near Thousand Oaks by three armed men who robbed the 35 passengers of $3,000 in cash and valuables. The men then stopped the bus and fled in a waiting car.

The reward was announced Thursday by Frank L. Nagoette, president of the San Francisco-based division of Greyhound, who said:

"We already have taken whatever precautions we can to prevent a recurrence of this nature. What we are interested in here is seeking these criminals caught and prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law."

Priestes and Martinez met while they were in federal prison at Eglin AFB., Fla.

Acupuncture believed too painful to Yanks

DALLAS (UPI) — Americans don't have the resistance to pain that Orientals have developed and, therefore, the use of acupuncture in the United States will not become widespread for many years, according to a medical school professor who recently returned from China.

"Acupuncture works well in China with Chinese doctors and skilled Chinese practioners," Dr. M. T. Jenkins, chairman of the Department of Anesthesiology at Texas Southwestern Medical School, said recently.

Jenkins said acupuncture will not be used widely in the United States for a long time because "it was doubted acupuncture analgesia would be accepted by Western patients who tend to have relatively lower pain threshholds than their Oriental brethren.

"It also seems the Western surgeons will demand quieter, more relaxed patients," he said.

Jenkins said it is a fallacy to believe acupuncture is a routine part of Chinese surgery.

"It is used only in a small percentage of total surgical cases by the Chinese —perhaps as much as 15 per cent of all surgery," he said.

He also said acupuncture is more of an analgesia —reduced perception of pain while the patient is still awake —than an anesthesia.

"Not even the Chinese represent it to be anesthesia," he said.

Bee colony disturbs neighbors in cabin

By Dr. Frank Miller

DEAR DR. MILLER: A neighbor has set up a bee colony right near our cabin. We're all freaked, and he's tried to cool it by saying his bees are tame. He guarantees his bees are friendly. Can we really believe this? — T. B.

Dear T. B.: Could be by this time you already know the answer, or at least each day you remain in doubt could logically raise hopes for a stingless summer. As with other species, bees vary from downright irascible to "sort of" friendly (the friendliest are especially so when left alone . . .). Since beestings can be dangerous to pets and people alike, particularly when the victim is allergic to the bee venom, avoid contact with the needle-bottomed nectar seekers when possible.

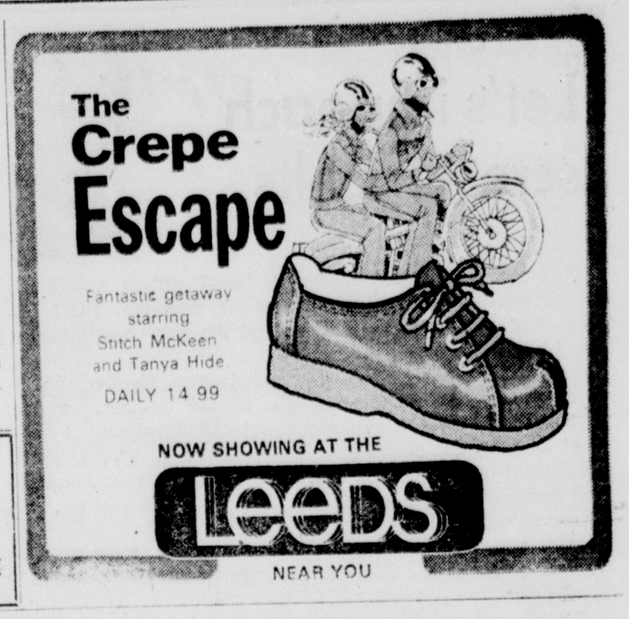

DEAR DR. MILLER: Hoppy's my sister's one and half-legged barn owl. She gave me Wheezer, her cat, when she got Hoppy. She thinks Hoppy can see better in the dark than Wheezer because barn owls dive and capture mice in the dark. Is she right for once? —C.F.

Dear C.F.: Barn owls do dive and capture mice in the dark all right, but it's not entirely a matter of keen eyesight. Barn owls use the facial disc feathers (those around the yes) to help amplify periodic "pips" emitted by mice, and thus home in on their target. If the owl's auditory (hearing) system is interfered with, the accuracy of the aerial attacks will drop considerably.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Since the arrival of the new puppy, our cat, Freaky, has been sneezing his head off. So far he is not too crazy about the puppy anyway. Could he be allergic to him besides? — A. H.

Dear A. H.: This time of year most cat sneezes would be related to respiratory viruses. Some sneezing could, of course, be due to allergic reactions. If the doctor rules out a virus as a cause for Freaky's sneezing sessions, possibly an allergy is the cause. This still wouldn't prove the puppy is the culprit but, admittedly, cats can be allergic to dogs (and vice versa, of course).

Rattles & straws

Let's impeach screech belts

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Had occasion recently to rent a rental car. It was much newer than mine, as most cars on the road are, and I felt quite elegant as I settled back behind the wheel and switched on the ignition.

My ears were immediately assailed by a piercing, angry whine and a malevolent red light on the dashboard began blinking at me like a highway patrol car. Frantically I fumbled for the eject button and tumbled onto the parking lot. I scrambled to my feet and raced into the men's room, crouching fearfully, waiting for the explosion.

The attendant came after me — warily.

"Get away from that car?" I shouted. "It's going to self-destruct." Panting, I told him my experience. "It's a bomb!" I gasped.

"No it's not, pal, it's a good car. It does that when you don't fasten your seat belt."

I sagged against the wash basin. "You mean that car did all those things by itself? It can MAKE me fasten my seat belt?"

"Where you been for the past five years?" he said."Come on, I'll show you."

He led me back to the car, me keeping behind him just in case. He pried my rigid fingers from his arm and installed me again behind the wheel.

"There, that wasn't so bad now, was it?" he said in the soothing this-won't-hurt-a-bit voice of a dentist. "Now turn on the ignition again."

Fearfully I did as he said. The light flashed, the car snarled like a rattlesnake, and I catapulted out again.

"There is no way," I said to the attendant, "that I am going to get into a car that screams at me."

"All you have to do is fasten your seat belt," he said.

I drew myself up. "I have not yet reached the point where I will take orders from a machine."

Now that we have that nice homely Mr. Ford in the White House, I wish he would do something about screech-belts. Isn't this a flagrant invasion of privacy by Washington and Detroit? By what God-given right does government tell us we MUST wear seat belts? It seems a basic right of every American citizen to take his chances with the windshield, if that's what suits him.

I am happy to say I am not alone in my petulance. A recent survey by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety showed that 41 per cent of the drivers of 1974 models are getting around the system and not wearing their belts. The current issue of the American Journal of Public Health made another study and concluded that the buzzer-light system was "a public health failure" because it did not significanlty increase the use of seat belts. The current issue of the American Journal of Public Health made another study and concluded that the buzzer-light system was "a public health failure" because it did not significantly increase the use of seat belts. In Puerto Rico, the only U.S. jurisdiction with a mandatory seat belt law, only 18 per cent of the drivers are wearing them.

It is doubtful if Jefferson, Franklin and our other Founding Fathers foresaw the freedom infringements of seat belts back in 1776, but there must be something in the Constitution saying that the feds cannot tell me what to wear in my own car.

When you've got a spare moment, Mr. President, would you please look into this matter of the expletive deleted seat belts?

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

On July 14, 1853, U.S. Commodore Matthew C. Perry visited Japan in the first attempt to open Japan to trade with the West, The World Almanac recalls. A treaty was ratified March 8, 1854, which allowed American ships to trade at the Japanese ports of Shimoda and Hokodate. Japan's economic growth is now greatly dependent on its export trade.

For Saturday, Aug. 17

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're going to form an interesting new relationship shortly with one who has many ideas that vary from yours.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Due to an unexpected shift in conditions, you're going to reverse your position on something you've been unrelenting about.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't lock yourself into any ideas or plans at this time that tie you down too far in advance. Allow lots of room for revisions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Continue to give most of your attention to situations that could enhance you in a material fashion. That's where you're now luckiest.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's important for you to realize the course you now set for yourself will be the one you'll follow for some time to come. Get off to a good start.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're still in that unique position where you can gain the upper hand by not being aggressive but by relying on timing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is a very favorable period for you to begin new projects, particularly if they deal with modern, updated principles.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In situations where competition is involved, you'll come out ahead if you watch for small opportunities overlooked by the other guy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An answer will suddenly pop into your head for a problem that appeared to have no reasonable solution.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A new venture where you share an equal interest with another can get off to a very good start if you both pull together.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't be hesitant about asking advice in a situation where you lack expertise. Sound suggestions will prevent wasted effort.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're going to find conditions improving considerably where your work or career is concerned. However, YOU must follow through.

Your birthday Aug. 17

This will be a year where you'll have more opportunity to travel than usual. Interesting personal advantages will be developed along the way.

Bridge

Takes a bath in heart coup

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The Bath Coup is one of the oldest plays in bridge. Apparently it was used in whist games at the English resort of Bath as long as 200 years ago.

In whist it was designed to get an opponent to continue a suit. In contract it may have that effect, but its more general purpose is to allow declarer to retain control of a danger suit.

North and South are to be congratulated on getting to five clubs. Lots of players would try a very unsuccessful three notrump. Others an almost equally unsuccessful six clubs.

Six clubs would make against a spade lead. South would simply draw trumps; knock out the ace of diamonds an discard his jack and trey of hearts on long diamonds.

When West opened the king of hearts against five clubs it was up to South to let the king hold. If he took it right away East would get in with the ace of diamonds and give his partner two heart tricks.

When South ducked the defense was helpless. It didn't matter what they led. If they led a heart, South would make both hearts good. If they didn't, South had plenty of time to go about the business of drawing trumps and setting up dummy's diamonds.

President Ford to visit Japan later in year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has accepted an invitation to visit Japan later this year, one that had already been accepted by former President Richard M. Nixon.

The White House and the Japanese Embassy announced the trip Wednesday, but neither said how long the visit would be.

U.S. and Japanese officials speculated the trip, Ford's first announced foreign journey, would not take place until after the congressional elections in November. The Japanese invitation said only that Ford had agreed to come "before the end of the year, at the earliest opportunity agreeable to both sides."

Ford will become the first U.S. President to visit Japan while in office, and he will find there a nation with many of the same economic problems he is trying to master at home.

Japan's economy and inflation rate are booming. It has one of the highest living costs in the world and its currency, the yen, is among the world's strongest.

Water pumping station ruins home sweet home

We bought a new home in La Verne last January.

Our home is located directly opposite a water pumping station.

When we bought our home we questioned the salesman about the station and received assurance from him that there would be no problems.

This was true enough for the first few months we lived here. Only the quiet whine of an electric motor could be heard.

The last two months or so have turned our home into a horrible place to live. Stationary engines run day and night at varying speeds. The result is a reverberating, pulsating, booming and droning noise which has pushed its way into our house and yard 24 hours a day.

My wife has spent countless nights sleeping on our living room couch where the noise is least bothersome but still very audible.

We called the city hall. After some bouncing around we were referred to Stan Kawa, Pomona Valley Municipal Water District manager. He listened to us sympathetically and promised some repairs. So far nothing has been done. — R. B., La Verne.

Kawa told us that the first complaints received by the water district from you came at the time one of the large engine muffler systems had a failure, causing abnormally loud low frequency noise output.

The problem was explained to residents, he said, and the district made temporary repairs "as soon as possible considering the exceptionally high demand placed on the plant at that time."

He said the district since that time has installed a different muffler on one engine, and made a source point survey of noise levels in and around the plant.

Quotations from sound proofing companies are being received for application of materials to further reduce the noise level.

Kawa explained that the original facility was constructed 26 years ago for delivery of raw Colorado River water to agricultural lands.

The present facility is a water treatment plant and pumping station built about three years ago for delivery of Colorado River water for domestic comsumption to La Verne and Claremont. There were provisions for delivery to other water agencies if needed.

Its use today is primarily one of providing water of low nitrate concentration for blending with local well supplies to meet health department standards and provide additional capacity.

Kawa says the plant is run or not run depending upon the demands of the cities it serves. Generally it operates from about March through mid-or late November.

Sound proofing would be very difficult during the high demand period, according to Kawa, but will be attempted as soon as possible.

Along with five other people, I suffered losses because of vandalsism to my automobile on Friday morning, July 5.

I have been informed that there is a state law in effect that if a person suffers material or physical damage due to the violent acts of another or others that you can file forms with the state for recovery of such damage.

Can you please advise me where I can secure these forms? — M. M., Pomona.

You can obtain the forms at the complaint desk of the sheirff's station in San Dimas but it appears you are not eligible.

We have been told by the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department that those eligible for compensation are:

— Persons injured as a result of a violent crime committed against them.

— Persons who suffer a monetary loss because of the death or injury from a violent crime of a person on whom they are financially dependent.

— Persons incurring physical injuries or dependents of those killed as a result of the negligence of another in the operation of a motor vehicle.

Child care program initiated here

A child care center that will enable parents to attend classes while their children attend pre-school will be offered at Mt. San Antonio College next fall.

The center, first of its kind in the valley, will be sponsored by both the student body and the college, with funds coming from both.

To expedite the project, the board of trustees approved the employment of Joyce K. Blewett of Fullerton as supervisor of the center on a half time basis.

James D. Simpson, vice president in charge of business services, said that even though the child care center is not expected to open until November, site preparations already are under way.

During the first year, the center will accommodate 37 children ranging from 2¾ to 5 years in age. In ensuing years the center will be able to handle three times as many children.

Parents who want to take advantage of the program must be enrolled at the college and must be taking a minimum of eight units.

A three-hour block of time, twice a week, will cost parents $12 a month. In addition to the supervisor, the child care center staff will include a full-time assistant, a full-time lab technician, a part-time lab technician, and students from the work study program.

The child study center will be housed in two converted mobile homes at the northwest end of the campus, beyond the book store.

Most of the money for operation is coming from a permissive tax levy which will raise about $43,000. An additional $11,000 is expected to come from the student body.

In order to allay possible conflicts and confusion, the trustees approved a set of priorities to be used in admitting children to the center.

On top of the admission list are families with financial needs. Subsequent priorities include families with both parents attending the college, and single parent families. On the bottom of the list, if there is room, are the children of staff members.

Board members lauded the project, saying that it will encourage mature students to attend classes which they could not take if they had to watch young children at thome.

They said the children not only will be given good care at the center, but will also undergo early childhood eduation.

City may apply again for funds to help elderly

The possible submission by the City of Pomona of a second application for federal funds for a nutrition and referral program for the elderly will be discussed at a special meeting Sept. 16.

The city applied for funds last November to participate in the national Nutrition Program for the Elderly and to open a new office on senior citizens' affairs, but was told funds had run out.

The proposed program also involves a referral office and the serving of hot meals at certain city locations to eligible participants 60 and older.

The second application would be filed under the provisions of the Older Americans Act.

The meeting will be held in the Pomona City Council Chambers and will start at 10 a.m.

Asst. City Administrator Joseph Korpsak and a representative of the Area Agency on Aging will be in attendance to answer questions.

YMCA offering new sessions in gymnastics

The Pomona Valley YMCA wili offer new classes in gymnastics and ballet beginning Monday and Tuesday.

The gymnastics class will be offered on Mondays and Wednesdays for a peiod of four weeks. Beginners will meet from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Intermediate students will meet from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Cost is $4 for YMCA members and $8 for nonmembers. The classes are for persons from 5 to 15.

The ballet class will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays for five weeks. Beginners will meet from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. with intermediate students meeting from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Cost is $5 for YMCA members and $10 for nonmembers. The instructor will be Miss Claudia Hall.

For information, persons may call 623-6433.

Classes set for children with hearing impairments

Free tutoring for infants and classes for children from 18 to 36 months with hearing impairments are offered by the Pomona Unified School District.

The Auditory Utilization and Development Infant Training program (AUDIT) was established by the school district in 1973 to prepare children with varying degrees of hearing and speech impairment to better adjust to the school situation before they enter elementary school.

If enough youngsters are enrolled, the tutoring and preschool programs will operate at San Jose School with transportation provided.

During a free testing clinic for infants conducted last month under the auspices of the school district, the Pomona Host Lions Club and the Pomona Jay-C-Ettes, 15 of the 43 infants tested were referred for medical attention, according to Mrs. Faith Schroeder, speech pathologist with the school district.

Mrs. Schroeder says that there are few totally deaf youngsters, but many have impairments which can be helped by the use of amplification equipment. The hearing aids used in the classroom are provided and maintained by the school district.

Parents are involved in the training so that they may continue the educational process at home.

Parents may contact Mrs. Ruby Lee Gracy, coordinator of special education for the Pomona School District, at 623-5251 for additional information or registration.

Man, 41, pleads guilty to count of manslaughter

A Pomona man charged with fatally shooting the assistant manager of an apartment house, has pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter.

Pomona Superior Court Judge Francis Garvey set the sentencing for Oscar Eric Harris, 41, of 2366 Belinda Ave., for Aug. 29.

Harris was originally charged with murder. Police said a quarrel developed between him and Jerry Treanor over whether two boys could swim in cutoffs at the apartment swimming pool at 1468 S. Palomares St., Pomona, last June.

As the quarrel became more heated, Harris pulled out a revolver. The gun went off just as Treanor's wife, Mary, stepped between the two men to break up the fight. The bullet struck her in the face and killed her.

Harris was a visitor in the apartment complex.

Warehouse tops 192 July building permits

One new warehouse and 143 additions or alterations to existing residential structures topped building activity in Pomona last month.

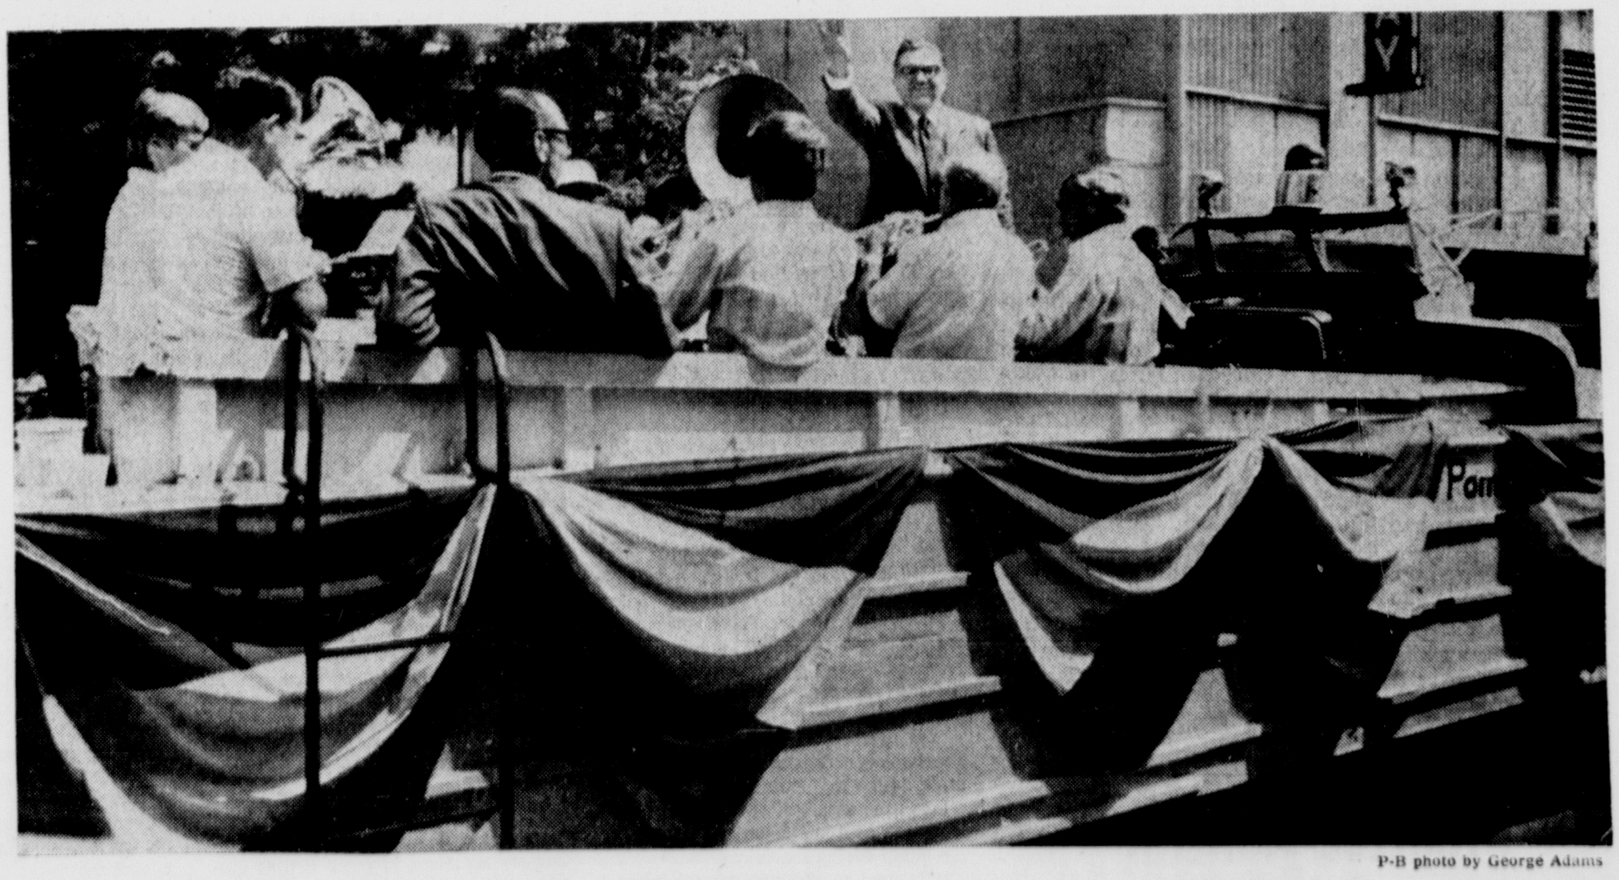

Officials issued 192 building permits during July, representing a combined valuation of $327,223. This boosted the seven month total to 1,107 permits and $5.5 million valuation.

Last month's activity compares with July 1973 totals of 143 permits and $345,537 valuation. The seven month total then was 1,059 permits and $11 million valuation.

The industrial building given a permit last month is a 4,880-square-foot warehouse addition to an existing building at 2771 N. Garey Ave. It's valued at $42,000. Perkin-Elmer is the owner.

Another major project is a floor plan alteration to an existing office building at 436 W. Fourth St., valued at $7,800. AAA Joint Venture of Ontario is the owner.

Other building activity by categories include: Dwellings demolished, seven, $3,400; residential garages or carports, three, $1,489; swimming pools, 11, $44,511; all other permits, 10, $6,298; and signs, five, $6,800.

THE LAST HURRAH

Fred Sharp, retiring Pomona city official, waves from civil defense amphibious truck decorated with bunting and carrying band playing "Anchors Aweigh." The truck paraded on Pomona Mall Thursday on way to city employes' luncheon honoring Sharp at Buffums Palomares Room. Later, the former city administrator was honored at reception at Pomona Elks Lodge which attracted an overflow crowd estimated at 700. The City Council presented Sharp with a set of luggage and his friends contributed funds for plane tickets to Europe for Sharp's family of five. Sharp, presently executive director of the Pomona Redevelopment Agency, retires Sept. 1 after 25 years of city service. Among reception visitors was Houston Flournoy, former valley assemblyman and current GOP gubernatorial candidate.

DDT battle renewed

In 1972 environmentalists won a major battle when William D. Ruckelshaus, then head of the federal Environmental Protection Agency, ordered curtailment of the uses of the pesticide DDT in America. There had been nine months of hearings, many law-suits, and much scientific testimony that the chemical damaged fish and wildlife and appeared to cause cancerous tumors in laboratory animals.

The victory was won over equally substantial scientific dissent, and now that dissent is again being expressed; most recently by one of its most persistent and effective voices. Thomas H. Jukes, University of California biochemist who is noted for his research in the synthesis of vitamins and for his willingness to speak up when environmentalism becomes a political issue, last week called for the removal of the federal ban on widespread use of DDT.

In an article published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Jukes says the chemical is badly needed as a "public health measure." And he repeats his old charge that the federal ban was "political rather than scientific."

One pressing reason for removing that ban, Dr. Jukes declares, is that DDT now is badly needed to control an infestation of gypsy moths that have ruined many square miles of woodland in Eastern states, leaving denuded forests that are an "ecological disaster area."

These moths now are being detected in California. Furthermore, the tussock moth now is destroying Douglas fir forests in the Pacific Northwest. Dr. Jukes pointed out that the value of DDT in combatting this pest is indicated by the fact that the U.S. Forest Service has recently authorized its use for that purpose.

Presence of such chemicals as DDT in humans is readily admitted, but as Dr. Jukes has long pointed out, it is not in dangerous quantity and is detected only because of new, highly sensitive research methods. His point is that a useful pesticide should not be banned outright for environmentally emotional reasons.

His critics, of course, disagree both emotionally and scientifically, but it is a point well worth stating and being studied.

'Qualify' is key

A strong voice has been added to those expressing sincere and thoughtful concern over the manner in which efforts to open to minorities greater opportunity for employment and education too frequently turn into a sort of reverse racism—being black, for instance, being a more important qualification than skills or training.

Wilson Riles, California's State Superintendent of Public Instruction told an Urban League meeting in San Francisco, recently that it had done an excellent job of opening job opportunities for those denied equal access to the job market but now must work to prepare youngsters to take those jobs.

"We must not permit ourselves," Riles said, "to fall into the trap of appearing to promote changing the rules of the game by lowering the standards for either entrance into the job market or the university. That is not advancement."

While arbitrary or irrelevant screening devices must be challenged, he said, it is just as important to see to it that applicants are prepared to pass "fair" tests of ability.

Which is a very fair and farsighted statement of the situation.

No. 9 vs. No. 9

One of the many features of Proposition No. 9, the so-called political reform initiative which was approved by the voters in the primary election this year, is its superficially appealing lid on the amount of money that can be expended — without special permission — to qualify a ballot measure.

The figure is a ridiculous $10,000.

Any committee contemplating a greater expenditure in its campaign must get permission from a yet to be appointed five-member Fair Political Practices Commission.

Under this stricture Proposition No. 9 itself could not have qualified, without courtesy of the Commission. Its proponents spent some $54,121 to get it on the ballot. Proposition No. 1, the tax limitation measure last November, required an outlay of $436,452. Only Proposition No. 7 last June came under the outright permissable total, hitting only $9,272 to qualify. That was the initiative to restore the death penalty.

Permission to spend more than $10,000 must be sought in writing. If the Commission "finds that the committee is in good faith in supporting or opposing the measure and that it has the intention and ability too incur the expenditures" it can say yes.

There is no provision for appealing a No answer.

Which, as intended, makes it a pretty powerful commission in deciding what issues the people will have a chance to vote on.

Nation's largest meeting of blind

On July 25, 1974 the Progress-Bulletin carried a story on the 13th annual convention of the American Council for the Blind held in Chicago. I listened with dismay as my mother read me the article. I find it difficult to understand why you published an article about ACB's convention when there isn't even a local affiliated chapter of ACB in the valley.

I found the emphasis of the article to be disadvantageous to the blind of the valley who are attempting to change the stereotyped views that the public have of us.

As a dog guide user myself, I feel the mentioning of a dog guide user feeding his dog under the table of a restaurant deplorable. Dog guide users have hard enough time getting into restaurants with our dog guides without proprietors reading this. I know of no dog guide school that advocates one feeding one's dog guide under the table.

I realize that the public finds our adaptations interesting and that is why it was mentioned that the floors and rooms were adapted with braille labels. I think that the public would be interested also in knowing that at our convention in Chicago the host chapter members themselves did the labeling. At the National Federation of the Blind's 34th annual convention held at Chicago's Palmerhouse only the 10th through the 24th floors were labeled due to an underestimation of the number of delegates attending. I was one of the delegates housed on the 7th floor where our own ingenuity had to suffice for brailled rooms and floors.

The 2,000 delegates representing 46 states discussed the problems affecting the nation's entire blind population. Matters of social welfare, social rehabilitation, public education for the blind, public transportation and the oppression of federal and non-governmental agencies doing work for the blind were of primary interest.

The 2,000 Federationists in attendance had the opportunity to listen to many commissioners and directors of agencies serving them and the opportunity of giving needed input as to the efficacy of the programs. All present felt that meaningful dialogue had taken place.

I do not know why you decided to publish an article on ACB's convention and not ours. I know that several news services carried stories about our convention, the nation's largest convention of organized blind in the history of the United States.

The National Federation of the Blind has an affiliated chapter in the Pomona Valley and our families and friends read the Progress-Bulletin and I know they, as well as I, would appreciate your recognition of such an important event. — Nancy J. Cramer, Claremont, vice president.

Rockefeller linked to Watergate?

WASHINGTON — President Gerald Ford has been searching for seven elusive boxes of Watergate documents which he fears may contain damaging information about former Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

Until a few weeks ago, it appeared certain the boxes had been burned on orders of Nixon campaign aides prior to the 1972 presidential elections. But during the past week, as Ford mulled over his choice for the vice presidency, his "transition team" quietly sought the missing cartons.

Their purpose: to make absolutely sure that there is no Agnew scandal in Ford's future.

According to sworn testimony the boxes, containing an estimated 7,000 documents, were destroyed. But new reports suggest they may have been cached instead in a locked vault. The reports are now considered firm enough to have brought the special Watergate prosecutor into the probe.

The hearsay evidence in their possession, which is similar to that reaching Ford, is that Rockefeller helped bankroll a standby team of Nixon toughs for the 1972 Democratic convention. The ex-New York governor's office had denied the charge as "absolutely untrue" and offered to open the campaign books to prove it is false.

The boxes, once in the custody of Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt, were hauled away by a Nixon loyalist named Roy Sheppard after the Watergate break-in of June 1972.

In August 1972, we came within an ace of getting them through Sheppard's lawyer, who was troubled about their hidden secrets.

But Sheppard adamantly refused to give them up. He later testified that he had burned them in his furnace on orders of Nixon campaign aides. There the matter stood until a month ago.

At that time, we received reports that Sheppard had not burned the papers and once again we tried to find them. Ford's "transition team" also heard of the documents and assigned a crack lawyer to track them down.

The lawyer worked through last weekend chasing clues. He satisfied himself there was at least a slim chance the boxes exist, although neither he nor anyone else was sure what they might contain.

Acting on White House orders, the lawyer immediately turned his clues over to assistant special prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste, who quickly reopened the investigation. Ben-Veniste has now been given the name of the town where the boxes are supposedly located. He also has clues to the identification of the alleged custodian of the boxes, provided by one of Sheppard's friends, Hal O'Brien.

At O'Brien's urging, we have learned, the special prosecutor intends to give Sheppard immunity from prosecution if the boxes are found intact.

Footnote: Actually, the special prosecutor is not as interested in the Rockefeller material as he is in other rumored contents of the boxes. Reportedly, there is evidence of Mafia campaign influence and answers to other unresolved Watergate questions. Sheppard, when asked about the boxes by my associate Les Whitten, said, "I don't know what you're talking about."

FIREARMS FRACAS: The Treasury Department's firearm regulators got caught with their powder wet by Rep. Mike Harrington, D-Mass.

Harrington, who wants to ban all private handguns, accused Treasury's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms of using faulty figures to show that 70 per cent of pistols used by criminals are cheap "Saturday Night Specials."

This figure plays right into the hands of the big domestic gun manufacturers who want the public to believe that costlier weapons aren't often used in crimes. Exactly the opposite is true.

Harrington complained to the bureau's director, Rex Davis, that such phony figures make it look like banning Saturday Night Specials will end the slaughter on America's streets. Davis promised to "re-examine the figures."

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Tax system taxes one's mind

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal income tax system as presently operated serves many worthwhile purposes.

It is used to collect political contributions from the general public, thereby reducing the candidates' dependence on special interests.

It is used to encourage donations to charitable, educational, religious and other deserving institutions.

It is used as a tool of economic regulation, to cool off inflations or prime the pump during recessions.

It is used to promote capital investments, agricultural enterprises, credit arrangements and insurance ventures. And more.

Without going through the entire inventory, let me just add that HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger recently suggested using the tax structure as an instrument for streamlining the welfare system.

So ingrained are these practices, and so numerous the proposals for additional use of the tax system, the whole subject has become rather ho-hummy. But I have something here that is guaranteed to give you a start.

It is a revolutionary new concept of tax system utilization set forth by the radical British economist, Sir John Maynard Turnipblood.

He is—brace yourself! — advocating using the tax system to raise revenue.

At first, during an interview with Turnipblood, I suspected he was pulling my leg. Some of those British economists have a sly sense of humor, as you can tell from the condition their country is in today. But he convinced me he was serious.

"Let me be sure I've got this straight," I said. "You are recommending using the tax system to collect funds to meet government expenses?"

"In a nutshell, that's it," replied Sir John, who is in this country on a lecture tour.

By this time I was sputtering a bit. "But ... but ... dash it all, man, you don't understand how things work in America. Over here we use our tax system as a vehicle for carrying out political reforms and achieving sociological objectives.

"Tying it in with revenue raising seems so ... so materialistic."

"I realize my plan will be controversial," Turnipblood said. "That's the price one pays for being ahead of one's time.

"But I am optimistic that once the original shock subsides and the novelty wears off, people will begin to see that financing government programs with money collected through the tax system makes sense."

It's a brilliant idea, all right, but I doubt it will ever be adopted. As I told Turnipblood, "If the government needs money, let it borrow it like the rest of us."

Just in jest

In Ecclesiastes 1-18 it is written: "For in much widsom is much grief and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow."

And it was the writer Erich Maria Remarque who said: "Never lose your ignorance; you cannot replace it."

Still not convinced that, "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise"? Well then, let's just check the record.

In 1943 the President of Harvard University in his report to the Board of Overseers, said: "Our purpose is to cultivate in the largest possible number of our future citizens an appreciation of both the responsibilities and the benefits which come to them because they are free."

Now, 31 years later, let's see how well higher education has been able to further that noble objective.—In a poll of both college and noncollege youth conducted by psychologist Daniel Yankelovich and his research organization, the question was asked: Do you think patriotism is a very important value:—Only 19 percent of the college students said "yes", while 40 percent of the noncollege youth answered that question in the affirmative.

RAY CROMLEY

Can Pres. Ford get able aides?

WASHINGTON — Whatever his other strengths, a president of the United States can govern successfully only if he has the ability to pick outstanding men—for White House advisers, cabinet secretaries and the associated top echelons of government.

Despite some brilliant exceptions, an inability to pick men was Mr. Nixon's major failure.

We know from the record that Gerald Ford handles men well. But never in his long and active political career has Ford been in a position where he had to choose and then manage those men most suitable for operating a major agency, a state or a city. He has never been a governor, mayor or chairman of a county board of supervisors.

We know that Ford attracts friends easily and builds loyalties. We know that able Republicans like Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan and former Sen. Charles Goodell of New York managed Ford's successful campaign for minority leadership of the House in 1965. We know Ford and former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird have worked closely together for years, that a brilliant former Democratic representative, John Marsh of Virginia, works in his office and that an outstanding former undersecretary of the Army, Ken BeLieu worked as a volunteer in Ford's vice-presidential setup for a spell. It is also clear that Ford is close to the exceedingly able Bryce Harlow, who won acclaim under Presidents Eisenhower and Nixon for his relationships with Congress.

But it is also clear that Ford has attached to himself at one time or another a coterie of mediocre men—not bad, or conniving, or arrogant men, but men of insufficient ability for high or sensitive advisory or administrative posts.

An analysis of Ford's vice-presidential staff in the Wall Streeet Journal editorialized that as a group, that staff was "loyal, hardworking, serious, self-effacing and not especially noted for brilliance."

"Mr. Ford's main problem with his staff is much more likely to be mediocrity than lawlessness," the Journal article continued, quoting an unnamed congressional staff man as saying "I've always been surprised at the low quality of the men working for Ford."

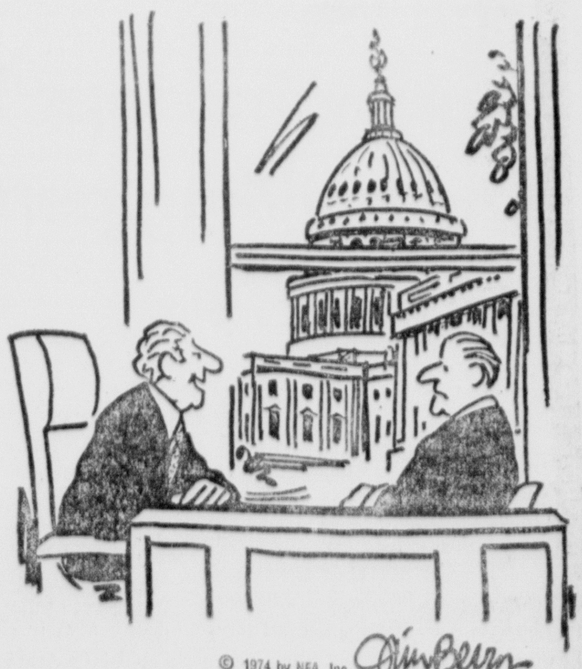

A very real part of Ford's task must be to draw into his administration numbers of the able men forced out of the government during the Nixon presidency and those equally qualified ones who were reluctant to accept the offices offered. These are men and women who quit and moved into private life or who were shifted into glittering posts outside the mainstream of important decisions.

They also are men and women of ability who, because of their suspicions of Haldeman, Erlichman, Dean and company, refused influential White House and Departmental jobs, choosing to remain in obscurity during the past few years. Numbers of these men and women were turned off by the manner in which the top White House staff jealously guarded access to Mr. Nixon, a trap which could kill the ability of any president to attract outstanding associates.

This reporter has in the past several months been in contact with former White House and department officials scattered from California to New England. These men tell me that they and others have set for themselves a sort of holding operation. They have taken temporary posts with private organizations with the understanding that they are free, if opportunity offers, to detach themselves at a moment's notice and move back into Washington politics for some Republican administration which showed promise. They were not about to come back, they said, so long as any remnants of the Haldeman-Erlichman-Dean group remained. Numbers doubted they would consider coming back to any Nixon administration, however cleaned out.

But most would consider favorably an opportunity to serve in a Gerald Ford administration.

Mosaic dispute could end in court

The city of Claremont may go to court over the battered children's tile mosaic which was once part of the old Claremont library.

The City Council Tuesday night approved hiring two appraisers to place a value on the 46-year-old mosaic, made for the then-new city library in 1928 for $120 by Gladding-McBean Co.

The city signed a contract Dec. 27, 1973 on behalf of the citizens, and in particular, the Friends of the Claremont Library, with National Concrete Sawing Inc. to remove the tile mosaic for placement in the new Claremont library now under construction on Harvard Avenue, between Second Street and Bonita Avenue.

The firm was to be paid up to $900 for the job.

A workman for National Concrete Sawing Inc. the following day destroyed one-third of the lower portion of the mosaic with a sledgehammer before he was stopped.

The firm said that it would remove the mosaic and try to find some one to repair it.

Interpace corp. which was once Gladding-McBean, was contacted by the city, and in March that firm reported that the mosaic could not be repaired to resemble its original state.

Officials said they could reproduce the style for $450, but could not match the colors of the old mural because of the fading.

Interpace also offered to make a new tile mosaic for $980.

National Concrete Sawing has offered to give the mosaic back to the city providing for no payment for the work it did.

But Friends of the Claremont Library, headed by Mrs. Margaret Gibbs, were displeased by the news that a settlement was possible.

The Friends feel that the current value of the mosaic is many times the original price, both from its being "more than 50 years old and from its exemplary depiction of a style of art form no longer available, and also from its sentimental value to long-time residents."

Mrs. Gibbs told the council that the mosaic has been a concern of the Friends for more than 10 years, and that the tile are "rare and sentimental. She read a letter written by Beth Dens, Friends corresponding secretary in 1966, in which Mrs. Dens asked for preservation of the mosaic.

Councilmen agreed that they would like to get the mosaic back from the concrete sawing firm, and Councilman Gene Block suggested that the appraisals be made by experts who could be witnesses in court.

City Atty. William Bergman explained that as to the sentimental value of the mosaic, a court wouldn't award the city a nickle, "but the court would decide what the mosaic is worth and what it will cost to replace it."

Telethon seeks youth participants

Youth groups in the valley area wishing to be represented on the New Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon to benefit musular dystrophy are urged to contact the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America (MDAA) office.

The address is 920 W. Olympic Blvd., Los Angeles 90015. The telephone number is 213 749-4461.

Lewis, who is national chairman of the MDAA, said youth groups across the country will play an important role in his annual telethon, which will be broadcast by KTTV, Channel 11, starting at 7:30 p.m. Sept 1 and ending at 3:30 p.m. Sept. 2.

Already slated to appear are representatives of Order of DeMolay, Job's Daughters, Rainbow Girls and MDAA's own Youth Against Dystrophy. Lewis' son, Ron, is national chairman of YAD.

College youth will be represented by spokesmen of two fraternities, Pi Kappa Alpha and Chi Phi, which has adopted the telethon as a major charitable project.

This year's telethon will originate from Las Vegas, Nev. Segments will be broadcast from New York, Nashville, Tenn., and Hollywood.

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley is honorary telthon chairman in Los Angeles. Bradley said any college group which raises $10,0000 or more for MDAA programs of research and patient services, will be invited to present the gift on camera.

Voter drive kickoff set

A voter registration kickoff reception will be held Saturday from 6 to 8 p.m. to culminate the first full day of neighborhood canvassing in a voter sign-up drive in the valley.

The reception, sponsored by the Committee to Elect Jim Lloyd, will be held at the home of Margaret and Daniel Preska, 297 Lincoln Ave., Pomona. A $5 donation is requested.

Lloyd is the Democratic nominee for the 35th Congressional District. He will walk door-to-door in Pomona Saturday to launch the seven week registration drive.

Pomona Councilman Ben Ochoa and Pomona school trustee Jim Bell are co-chairmen of the drive and reception. Reception tickets may be reserved by contacting Mrs. Shirley Rosen at 599-7677.

Joint council meeting fails to draw quorum

The joint meeting of the La Verne City Council and its three committees became an informal discussion session Wednesday night for lack of a quorum.

No action could be taken because most councilmen and commissioners were on vacation this week.

The joint sessions are a quarterly effort on the part of the council and the Planning, Environmental Quality and Parks and Recreation commissions to improve lines of communications and to discuss city policy.

Plaza plans fashion show

Live music and a teen fashion show will kick off back-to-school activities at the Broadway at the Montclair Plaza Saturday at 12:30 p.m.

A similar affair will be presented at the same time at the Broadway Puente Hills.

Some of the models will be members of the Broadway's Youth Council. Representing the Montclair store will be Mary Susanna Flewelling of Montclair High School, Annette Forester of Claremont High School, Lawrence Ray Martin of Alta Loma High School, Jennifer Anne Pulver of Pomona Catholic High School, and Dennis Raymond Smeal and Bobbie Twydell, both of Chaffey High School in Ontario.

Those on the Puente Hills Youth Council are Valarie Renee Berdin and Greg Holmes of La Puente High School, Linda Osborne of Wilson High School, Nancy Stedge of Rowland High School, and Barbara Zimmer of Bishop Amat High School.

Tomorrow: Decisive Battles

Another flareup in Berlin?

BONN (LENS) — There was the truck driver in Moscow who, among his many other distinctions, had fought from Stalingrad to the Reichstag without suffering a scratch.

He could never understand the recurring Berlin problem. "All you have to do," he would say, "is to give West Berlin to us and that'll be the end of the problem." O sancta simplicitas. Berlin was, is and will be the barometer of East-West and intra-German relations.

The East Germans have just given that barometer a tap and the political temperature has shot up.

On July 25 the West Germans set up a federal environment office in West Berlin. The East Germans responded by carrying out their threat to prevent the personnel and possessions of that office from sullying East German soil. Vehicles have been stopped at the frontier while their occupants are asked by the border guards if they are members of the environment office. A member of the office was turned back from the border.

The East German action is in violation of the 1972 traffic treaty between the two Germanys and the 1971 four-power agreement on Berlin, both of which promise free Western access to the city. The four-power agreement—signed by Russia, the United States, Britain and France—also says that the ties between West Germany and West Berlin should be "maintained and developed," which seems to cover things like the environment office.

The United States has announced that it would postpone the expected establishment of diplomatic relations with East Germany (a decision that happened to coincide with the visit of the West German foreign minister, who as interior minister had pushed for the environment office in West Berlin).

As yet, the three Western powers had not summoned up enough unanimity about diplomatic methodology to present a protest note to the Russians; the Americans have been dragging their feet, and Henry Kissinger is said to want to do his own deal with Russia over everybody's head.

Is the East German action simply a pin-prick or is it the prelude to something more serious? Larger hold-ups on the autobahns? Or the beginning of an attempt to exploit western weaknesses and to wrest East Berlin (the capital of East Germany) from even nominal four-power control?

Nobody, in Bonn, can tell. The West German government itself is playing it cool, trying to smooth things over by a meeting of the East-West German transit commission. Several West German ministries, including the ministry for intra-German relations, are against a western demarche, fearing that it might provide Russia with the excuse to reopen the whole Berlin problem.

If the siutation becomes worse, the West Germans have an ace up their sleeve—trade. But they would be reluctant to play it. The East Germans badly need the Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union, including the steel mill of Kursk, south of Moscow, which the West Germans are going to build.

That Moscow truck driver knew all the answers but the West Germans do not.

Inmate slims down, squeezes through bars

Brides sold on islands

Client asks if brides are still for sale in the South Pacific. In New Guinea, they are. At least in the remoter highlands. Price varies, depending on the bride's experience or lack of same. An inexperienced bride is said to sell for about $250, five pigs and one cassowary bird. But a bride married once earlier is only valued at $35 and one cassowary. That's approximate. Understand a lot of dickering goes on in these transactions.

THOSE GRAPHOLOGISTS clain the handwriting that leans far to the right identifies the highly social citizen who likes picnics, parties, people. Maybe so, don't know. It's claimed a majority of the politicians show that extreme slant in their penmanship.

ROSES

Q. "Say I create a new type of rose that's worth marketing. And patent it. And some national distributor buys the rights. How much money can I expect?"

A. Standard royalty payment hereabouts runs 15 per cent of retail for the first and second years on the market, 10 per cent for the third year, and 5 per cent from then on out. Some new varieities have been known to sell a million plants a year, too. You could grow old gracefully on that sort of pension, what?

QUESTION ARISES as to why blind horses so often were used on the old horse-drawn ferry boats. No because they were less likely to shy as commonly believed. They were cheaper, that's all, and not good for much else anyway.

SOFT WATER

Customer says it's hard to figure out why New England woundup as a big textile center, considering most all the cotton was grown in the South. The soft water up there explains that. Such be highly desirable for the making of fancy fabrics, I'm told.

THE FRENCH WORD "bugne" means "swelling." That's where we get our word "bun" for a raised bread roll. Good. Beats calling it a "swelling," what?

TWO AND A HALF HOURS, that's about how long a woman can play the slot machines at the Nevada clubs when she's in high heels. But if she shows up in flats, she can perch there with the click and clatter for as long as four hours. So says a gambling expert who made a study of that significant matter.

The doctor comments

Ointments provided only by a physician

By Lawerence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—In one of your columns you wrote about skin cancer. You said some spots that are really not yet cancer, but the kind that may become cancer, can be removed by various skin ointments now available. Can you please list some of these ointments so that I may buy them?

DEAR READER—I received a lot of mail asking about that. Those ointments are not something you can do yourself. And, you can't obtain them without a prescription. One of these I was thinking about is Efudex. But these ointments must be used with care. Dermatologists use other ointments as well for the same purpose.

It is probably not a good idea to be trying to remove skin spots on your own. Your doctor needs to see what they are and be sure you get the right treatment. And, in many instances, for the raised furry spots and surface spots that sometimes turn into cancer he can give you a generalized treatment for them. I think I mentioned before that a medical salve like Efudex can even identify cells that are about to undergo changes that still look perfectly normal. So, if you have these raised spots that doctors call "keratosis" and similar skin problems, your doctor can do something about them without having to cut all of them off.

DEAR DR. LAMB—My mother is a diabetic and when I was younger she would tell me that I could never marry a man whose mother was also a diabetic. She said we would have deformed babies.

Recently my husband's mother was told she would be placed on diabetic tablets. This has made me very concerned about having children. Is there any medical truth to what I was told? Is it possible that this factor may cause abnormal children?

DEAR READER— That is a bit of an exaggeration. You do have the chance that some of your children will be diabetic. That does not mean they will be deformed. I would guess from the nature of your letter that you are still pretty young. Actually about 10 per cent of the people over 65 do have diabetes. The rate of diabetes increases with age. We don't know yet whether or not you will be a diabetic during your life time or even whether or not your husband will be.

If both of you are diabetic, then it will be likely that your children will be, but perhaps not until they too are past 65. Both of you may be a carrier of the trait and then some of your children may be diabetic. One of you may be a carrier and the other person be normal. Then more than likely none of the childen will have diabetes.

So, what you are really worrying about is what are the chances of the children having diabetes, and if they do, when will they have it. I think beyond that you should forget about the problem. I would, though, plan on having periodic checks for yourself, your husband, and children, including at least a blood test to see if you have developed any evidence of diabetes.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on blood sugar, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for the "Blood Sugar" booklet.

THE GATEKEEPER — That is the nickname given by her friends to Elaine Brown, 19, who operates a gate at Vail's pedestrian mall just beneath President Ford's condiminium at Vail, Colo.

And still the condemned on nation's death rows wait

By United Press International

The number of condemned criminals awaiting execution across the country has been growing steadily since the Supreme Court overturned capital punishment in June of 1972.

However, because the high court's 5-4 decision a little more than two years ago did not outlaw capital punishment in absolute terms, many states have passed new laws, hoping to meet the Supreme Court's objections.

Today, at least 156 criminals await execution in 17 states. But it is unlikely they will be put to death until the Supreme Court has ruled on the constitutionality of the new laws.

North Carolina has sentenced 50 convicted murderers and rapists to death, including two brothers and two other men who are father and son.

In Florida, the first state to reimpose the death penalty after the 1972 Supreme Court decision, 30 persons await execution.

Georgia and Massachusetts each have 20 inmates on their death rows.

A UPI survey of all 50 states shows death row or its equivalent is also occupied in New Mexico (5), Alabama (1), Mississippi (1), Ohio (3), Wyoming (4), California (4), Arizona (4), Indiana (2), Oklahoma (4), Louisiana (5), South Carolina (1), Utah (1), and one in the state penitentiary in Texas, but others in Texas county jails are awaiting transfer pending appeal of their cases.

The state whose new law is first in line for a Supreme Court test is North Carolina, where death in the gas chamber is mandatory for all criminals convicted of first degree murder or rape.

The Supreme Court is expected to hear appeals against the state's new law filed on behalf of five death row prisoners when the court reconvenes Oct. 14.

In its 1972 decision, the five justices who were against capital punishment gave various reasons. Only two justices among the five said death was cruel and unusual punishment and therefore unconstitutional.

Others said it was not applied equally to persons convicted of committing the same crimes.

Former President Richard Nixon proposed reinstatement of the death penalty for certain violations of federal statutes, including skyjacking. The bill has been passed in the Senate but has not yet been acted on by the House.

The latest two persons to be condemned were Billy J. Cloman, 19, and Julian P. Turner, 25, of Portland, Ore.

They were convicted of murdering a Wyoming rancher and his neighbor, two men who gave the younger men a ride on a snowy night last December.

Cloman and Turner were sentenced to die in Wyoming's gas chamber at the state prison in Rawlins Oct. 10.

Citrus enrollment jumps

Expecting an increase from 8,500 students to 8,700, Citrus College in Azusa will open its doors for the fall semester on Sept. 16. Highlighting the college year will be the completion of a new two-story, vocational-technical building. The new building, due to be completed during spring of 1975, will be known as Technical Building C.

The new 20,000-square-foot building replaces the original technical building razed last year because it did not meet the requirements for earthquake safety.

Technical Building C cost $984,500 to build and will provide modern facilities and additional space needed for instruction in cosmetology, vocational nursing, nurses aide, photography, radio and television repair and air conditioning and refrigeration repair. The building will be located south of the present Technical Building B.

For the first time this fall, students will be able to play tennis in the evening. A new lighting system turned on during the summer will operate every night until 10:30. The courts will be open to the public every day except when classes or public events are scheduled. For the public's convenince, the college physical education department has constructed a schedule board adjacent to the tennis courts for reference as to the time the courts will be available.

Registration for fall students who did not register prior to Aug. 19 will be held from Aug. 27 to Sept. 7. Evening students who are veterans and continuing students will register on Aug. 27 and 28 from 3 to 8 p.m. All other evening students may register on Sept. 3, 4, 5, and 7. Day students will register on Sept. 6.

Citrus Athletic Director Ed Conly announced that yoga, golf, snow skiing and soccer classes will be held for the first time, in addition to classes previously announced.

In addition, new classes have been added for the evening program. These will include creative writing, auto emission control systems and licensing, physical oceanography 101, and religion in American culture. For students in the Claremont area, courses also will be offered at Claremont High School. These will include religion in American culture, business law, personal and social adjustment and finance and investments.

This fall will mark the 13th season of "Evenings at Eight". A cultural entertainment program, will begin Oct. 16. Featured will be Dizzy Gillespie, his ensemble and two other jazz artists.

Jeremiah Collins, a one-man show, will portray "An Evening with JFK," on Nov. 14. Other series attractions include the Citrus Singers, Vincent Price, Woody Herman and his orchestra, Carlos Montoya, and the Moving Company—a modern dance group with a band. Reserved season tickets are now being accepted. For addional information, the public is invited to call the Citrus Auditorium, Monday through Friday after 12:30 p.m. at 335-6616.

New teachers join school

Two new teachers will join the staff this year at Redeemer Lutheran school, Ontario, when classes begin Sept. 10.

Shirley Brown will be the new first grade teacher, and Delores Ford will instruct second graders.

Mrs. Brown, a native of Fort Wayne, Ind., graduated from Concordia Teachers College in Illinois and taught school for one year before coming to California. She has been a teacher in Ontario and Glendora.

Mrs. Ford, a graduate of St. Cloud State Teachers College of Minnesota, also attended Cal State Los Angeles and La Verne College. She has taught in Minnesota, Montana and in the Ontario-Montclair School District.

Redeemer Lutheran School emphasizes a student center curriculum with an experienced approach to learning within a Christian context.

Expansion due at Charter Oak

About 8,300 pupils, a drop of 500 from last year, will enter classes in the Charter Oak Unified School District when the 1974-75 school year begins Sept. 10.

A new principal at Palm View Elementary School, and several new programs or expansion of existing ones, will be some of the changes in the district this fall.

Richard Cavallaro, the new principal, brings 17 years' experience in public schools to the Charter Oak district. He received bachelor's and master's degrees from Brockport Teachers College in New York and did further graduate work at University of Rochester, Cal State Los Angeles and La Verne College.

He was a La Habra teacher for three years, and taught for 13 years in Rochester, N.Y., including four as an elementary school principal.

As for new programs, career centers will be added at Royal Oak and Charter Oak high schools in the fall.

Students at both schools will have an "increased opportunity" to talk to professional and business persons and gain information about jobs and career planning, through the career centers.

The district's Early Childhood Education program will be expanded in the fall at Banna Elementary School. The program provides funds by which the school can decrease adult-student ratio and provide materials and services not usually available in the average primary program.

The Charter Oak Role Playing Project may be expanded this fall, if the district receives federal funds it applied for. Last year, the district's special education department in grades kindergarten through five was involved in an interpersonal skills lab. The lab provides learning-disabled students with experiences involving a "unique style of educational role playing," according to school authorities.

Goals of the program are to urge students to express and communicate feelings, positive and negative, and to learn to appreciate pesonal dynamics in others.

Students at Charter Oak High will have an opportunity this fall to utilize expanded auto metal shop facilities.

The expansion will provide for two-hour classes, additional enrollments of 75 to 100 students and specialized teachers in auto and metal shop.

New equipment is being purchased for the shop, and facilities are being remodeled. The automotive portion of the program will now include the study of transmissions and differentials.

GERARD DAMIANO

'Deep Throat'

Top porno producer says porno popularity on wane

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The producer-director of "Deep Throat'"' has completed a new porno flick to qualify for Oscar nominations next year.

Gerard Damiano, who also directed "The Devil In Miss Jones," is an ex-hairdresser and family man who operates out of New York. He sees little hope for his new film, "Memories Within Miss Aggie," enjoying the astounding boxoffice success of "Deep Throat."

He says, in fact, that porno has about run its course.

"Deep Throat" set an all-time Hollywood boxoffice record at the Hollywood Pussycat theater with $3,272,736.75 in 82 weeks.

"'Deep Throat' was a phenomenon," said Damiano, "but that era is already past. Anyone who hasn't seen that picture to date is too late to see it now. It's old-fashioned.

"We've moved on to other things now. I saw 'Deep Throat' six months ago and while I enjoyed making it, I was disappointed in it. I have evolved as a film maker and the public has evolved on explicit sex."

Damiano's main point seemed to be that so-called straight films are including so many simulated sex acts and near-explicit sex that audiences are dwindling for the hard core stuff.

"Audiences are more sophisticated today," Damiano said. "I doubt if any film will generate the hysteria 'Deep Throat' did."

"Memories Within Miss Aggie" is almost an art film. Subtract three graphically sexual episodes from the picture and it becomes a study in madness.

"We have an official X rating from the Motion Picture Producers Association," Damiano said. "And come Academy Award time we will ask for ballot forms in all 13 Oscar categories.

"Remember, 'Last Tango in Paris' and 'Midnight Cowboy' were X-rated and they both won Academy nominations. Another reason we wanted the official rating is that some newspapers won't take ads otherwise."

While Damiano makes porno movies, he searches the newspapers looking for PG-rated films for his own children. He sees no conflict.

"I think sex has gone as far as it can go on film," he said. "Now I want to go on to other things, higher plateaus. I made 'Throat' for $25,000. "Memories" cost $50,000.

"It would be great to make a picture with a $150,000 budget. At first I thought I'd like to produce a G-rated movie. And I was offered one at MGM through a back door subsidiary with a $500,000 budget. But I'd have had to make it against my own principles."

Damiano is aware that his new picture has no chance of a nomination.

"The nature of the picture makes that impossible," he said. "Even if the sex were deleted, it would be impossible. It's a non-union, non-Hollywood film to begin with.

"I entered it in the Cannes Film Festival and when it was well-received I knew the festival was in trouble," Damiano said. "And so is porno. When it becomes acceptable then porno becomes part of the established society. The only thing that can perpetuate porno is censorship. That forces sex films underground and popularizes them."

Bit Parts: Dennis Weaver of "McCloud" will play master of ceremonies for the 11th Annual Brotherhood Award Dinner of the National Conference of Christians and Jews Sept. 3 ... Van Johnson will play a guest role in an episode of "McMillan and Wife'" ... Comedian Arte Johnson will appear in 26 segments of the new ABC-TV children's show, "Hot Fudge" ...

Diana Trask to appear at county fair

Australia-born Diana Trask, one of this country's leading country-western singers, will headline at the San Bernardino County Fair in Victorville Thursday.

Also on the card will be Billy Armstrong and Pat Buttram.

Already a topflight performer on Australian television in the late 1950s, Miss Trask came to America about 15 years ago and started building a new career in a field of music that had always been regarded as a special province for native musicians.

One advantage she enjoys over most other performers is the fact she excels in several styles of music, not just country-western.

Two years ago Miss Trask, with Roy Clark, opened the Las Vegas Strip to country music, first at the Landmark, then at the Frontier Hotel. "In 10 years I think there will be country music in every casino up and down the Strip," she predicts.

It was a struggle for Miss Trask initially to be accepted by country music fans. Her commitment, however, and her unquestioned ability, not to mention years of apprenticeship in Nashville, Tenn., have won her many admirers. Today she is "Miss Country Soul," which was the title of her first album.

Others are: "Diana, from the Heart," "Diana Sings About Loving", "Diana's Country'', "It's a Man's World", and her latest, "Lean It All on Me". (All six albums are on the Dot label).

A frequent guest on T.V.'s Hee Haw and headliner with Clark, Miss Trask is rapidly expanding her list of credits. She has appeared on TV on Dean Martin's Country Music Show, with Merv Griffin, and in "How the West Was Lost." She recently made her acting debut on Love American Style.

SAY 'AAAH' — Hal, played by Barry Moore, fits the corpse (Jan Clark) with a set of false teeth while the nurse, Fay (Jeanine Lambath) looks on in a scene from the Cal Poly production of "Loot." The English suspense comedy opens at the university theater at 8 o'clock tonight and will be repeated at the same hour Saturday and next Thursday through Saturday. Drama professor Robert Gilbert directs.

SINGING SISTERS — The Lennon Sisters, quartet that starred on the Lawrence Welk Show for 12 years and later was a regular on the Andy Williams Show, will perform in the John Wayne Theater of Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park Sunday through Aug. 24. The girls were first introduced to Welk by his son, Lawrence Jr., almost 20 years ago.

Michael Caine

Actor finally arrives--at Duke's caravan

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — He was like a kid who had just won a prize, his eyes sparkling and his pride obvious in his smile.

"This is Duke's caravan," he said. "Imagine — they gave me Duke's caravan."

Michael Caine lit up a big cigar and leaned back in his chair, in Duke's caravan. Caravan, of course, is the British word for a trailer or a motor home, and 20th Century-Fox had rented John Wayne's big, flashy motor home to serve as Caine's dressing room during the filming of "Fat Chance."

"I like it," Caine said. "I like the fact that it's Duke's caravan, too. That's nice."

Caine is an open, friendly man, who likes to talk and hates being alone. So he keeps the refrigerator in Duke's caravan stocked with beer, so people on the set will pop in and talk to him.

When nobody pops in, he reads. He reads everything. Always has.

"My oldest daughter,' he says, "loves horses and has never read a book, except maybe 'Black Beauty.' Just the opposite from me — I love to read and I hate horses."

He took off his glasses and looked at them.

"Reading so much is how I got bad eyes," he said. "As a kid, I was evacuated from London during World War II. World War II was the best thing ever happened to kids my age. From the age of six until I was 12 I was out of London and lived on a farm in Norfolk.

"The farmer couldn't get any chemical fertilizers then because of the war. So he used manure. We didn't know it, of course, but we were living on organic food. That's how I got to be 6 feet 2.

"What was I talking about? Oh, yes, my bad eyes. Well, there was no electricity on the farm. But I read all the time, by oil lamp and, at night, what we called nightlights — candles in a dish of water. I guess they stopped using them in the U.S. around 1776 but we still had them. And that's how I got my bad eyes, I'm sure."

Caine still lives in England but he doesn't work there any more. He says the movie business in England is now non-existent.

"There's no money to pay us," he says, "so Sean (Connery) and Roger (Moore) and I can't work there. If we did, it would all go in taxes."

His mood changed as he contemplated the financial conditions in his homeland today.

"We're not British subjects any more," he said, "We're British objects. I think I'm a socialist, emotionally, but the things that are happening in England today, with the merchant banks and all, are terrible.

"They've made success a crime and that's wrong."

He says that many actors, and other well-to-do people, have been badly hurt by the British financial and tax structure. But he was lucky — or smart.

"I saw it coming 10 years ago," he says, "and I made certain arrangements, so I'm all right.

This year, for example, he's made films in Nice, France; Kenya, and now in Hollywood. It is, he says, the busiest year he's ever had. Altogether, he will make four films in 1974 and has already contracted for three in 1975.

"I'll never be this busy again," he says. "After '75 I'll only do two pictures a year at the most." Eventually, he'd like to direct. He's writing a screenplay now, he says, and he hopes to direct it when it's finished.

"I'll probably have to be in it, too," he says. "I imagine the only way I can get somebody to let me direct would be if I agreed to be in it."

One reason he's so busy is that he is now being offered good parts in good films and he hates to turn down such offers. He says that four years ago or so, he didn't even like the pictures he did, "so you can imagine what the stuff I turned down was like." But today it's different — lots of good scripts are coming his way.

HAPPY FAMILY — Actor Michael Caine lives it up these days in John Wayne's motor home on the 20th Century-Fox lot in Hollywood with his wife, Shakira, and daughter, Natasha. Caine fell in love with the Guiana-born Indian girl when he first saw her on a television commercial for Maxwell House coffee.

Veteran western film star Joel McCrea narrates the G-rated movie. It was named best documentary at the Atlanta Film Festival.

Singin' the blues

Network tapes tribute to Muddy Waters

By BRUCE MEYER

Television has done a fair-to middlin' job of catching up with rock music of late. With two network concert shows and a major syndicated series, rock is finally getting the tv exposure it deserves as the nation's most popular form of entertainment.

Despite improvement in the rock field, however, the tube systematically ignores the importance of the blues as one of America's two prime musical tradition (country being the other).

Enter Public Television and a producer named Ken Ehrlich.

Ehrlich works at WTTW, a Public TV Network affiliate in C and sound mind, he put together a locally made rock show that attracted national attention. He eventually got money from the network to do a similar national show.

Chicago being the home of the modern blues, Ehrlich decided to use local talent for a blues show. So he contacted and signed the great Muddy Waters and Willie Dixon—and passed the word around that it was to be a tribute to Muddy. The idea snowballed—and a lot of Muddy's many friends in the business decided they'd like a piece of the action. One after another they said sure—they'd work for free—for Muddy.

In the end the line-up for the show was beyond a producer's wildest dreams. Johnny Winter. Dr. John. Junior Wells.

What's more, it worked. That is, this turned out to be one of the rare supersessions" that produced music worthy of the names of the participants.

Johnny proved he can belt 'em out even when his frail body is ailing. Dr. John proved he can boogie on the piano with the best of them, and that he is one of the world's legitimately weird people. Buddy proved he is a hell of a drummer, when he's not too busy being a star. Mike proved he is one of the best blues guitarists anywhere. Junior poved he is the very best harp player, period. And they all proved that Muddy Waters is the finest bluesman there is.

It was a great evening, concluding with a long jam on "Keep My Mojo Working" that got more spontaneous audience participation than an entire season of the Midnight Special.

The show will be broadcast sometime this fall on most Public TV Network stations, simulcast in stereo in many cities. Don't miss it.

George Burns plans to leave hospital soon

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Comedian George Burns, 79, who underwent open heart surgery last Friday, will be released from Cedars of Lebanon hospital in about 10 days, his doctors said.

Burns teamed for many years with his late wife, Gracie Allen. He was reported in good condition Tuesday, able to move around and was busy reading the entertainment trade papers.

Mehta conducting

Philharmonic sets preview programs

Zubin Mehta and the Los Angeles Philharmonic will present a series of concerts in the Hollywood Bowl starting Tuesday to preview programs of their six-week tour of Europe in September and October.

Soloist in the Tuesday concert will be pianist Mona Golabek, who will play Liszt's Concerto No. 1 in E Flat. On Thursday pianist Lukas Foss will be soloist in Bach's Concerto in D Minor.

Next Friday and Saturday the Philharmonic will stage its sixth annual Tchaikovsky Spectacular with pianist Juliana Markova and violinist Vladimir Landsman as soloists. The two concerts will include the "Romeo and Juliet Overture," Piano Concerto No. 1 in B Flat Minor, Violin Concerto in D, and the "1812 Overture" with military band, cannon and fireworks.

Miss Golabek was born in Los Angeles and attended Beverly Hills High School and USC. She has a long list of awards, including the Young Musicians Foundation Debut Grant, the Coleman Chamber Award, the Juilliard Concerto Competition Award, and the People's Prize at the 1970 International Warsaw Competition, and has won many scholarships.

Miss Golabek has toured with the Warsaw Philharmonic throughout Poland and performed in Japan and Central America. She appeared as soloist with the Los Angeles Philharmonic in 1968 and 1971 and made her Hollywood Bowl debut in 1969. Last summer she was the soloist at the Bowl's Tchaikovsky Spectacular, playing the Piano Concerto No. 1. In 1971, Miss Golabek won he Ford Foundation's Young Artist's Award entitling her to commission a piano concerto. She premiered the new work, by William Kraft, last November in a Philharmonic concert at the Los Angeles Music Center.

Foss, born in Berlin, came to the United States in 1937. He entered the Curtis Institute of music, where he studied composition with Rosario Scalero and Randall Thompson, piano with Isabella Vengerova, and conducting with Fritz Reiner. In a short time he made his debut as a composer-pianist in New York. At the Berkshire Music Festival Foss became a protege of Serge Koussevitzky and studied composition with Paul Hindemith. In 1953, he succeeded the late Arnold Schoenberg as professor of composition at UCLA.

Foss began to compose at a very early age, and had works published by the time he was 15. As a conductor, he served as music director of the Buffalo Philharmonic (1963-70) and has been a guest conductor with leading orchestras all over the world.

Foss is now conductor and musical adviser to the Brooklyn Philharmonia and to the Kol-Israel Orchestra of Jerusalem. Together with Ernest Fleischmann, Hollywood Bowl's artistic director, Foss introduced the five-hour-plus marathons of continuous music to bowl audiences in 1971, and has appeared as conductor for them as well as for regular bowl concerts since then.

Miss Markova began her studies at the music conservatory in her native Sofia, Bulgaria, and later trained with Ilonka Deckers at the Milan Conservatory.

Landsman began studying the violin at the age of 12 under Yuri Yankelevich at the Moscow State Conservatory. In 1963, he won the three prizes of the Jacques Thibaud International Competition.

Tickets are available at the Hollywood Bowl box office Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. — or through intermission on concert nights — and noon to 6 p.m. on Sundays. Tickets can also be purchased at Mutual, Liberty and Wallich's agencies.

2 pianists to perform at UCLA

Two European pianists, Christoph Eschenbach of Germany and Jean-Bernard Pommier of France, will inaugurate UCLA's twin Art of the Keyboard series in Royce Hall this autumn.

Eschenbach, among the most prominent pianists to emerge from Central Europe since World War II, will perform in the opening recital of the "A" Series, Nov. 8. Pommier, similarly a major keyboard figure, appears in the initial "B" Series program Oct. 26.

Following Eschenbach on the "A" Series are Murray Perahia, Dec. 1; Minoru Nojima, the Japanese performer who has gathered acclaim here since winning a Cliburn prize, Jan. 25, and Byron Janis, a favorite American pianist both here and broad, March 14.

Others on the "B" Series are Misha Dichter, returning once more to this series by popular demand, Jan. 11, 1975; Walter Klien, the Austrian-born artist renowned for his playing of Mozart, Feb. 8, and master pianist Jakob Gimpel, April 18.

Season tickets offering substantial savings on both series' may be obtained now through the UCLA central ticket office, 650 Westwood Plaza, Los Angeles, 90024.

Come to Rancho California and see Arabian horses make racing history.

You and your family can witness the beginning of organized racing for Arabian horses, at Rancho California this Saturday at 3 p.m.

In a beautiful, valley setting at Rancho California's Track & Training Center you'll be right on the track, right next to the action. See horse racing in its purest form as jockeys in their colorful silks race for the money on high spirited, natural running Arabians.

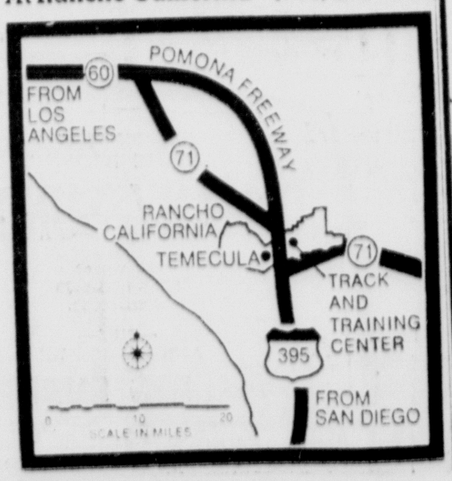

There is no pari-mutuel betting however, purse money for the meet totals $25,000 and includes regular and handicap races. The last race of the meet will be the $5,000 Rancho California Handicap.

Admission is free!

It's all done professionally with a starting gate and regulation 1 mile track, so it's a great way to enjoy racing without spending hours on the road and without the crush of a huge crowd.

Japanese TV nets go blue at night

By MARIANNA OHE

TOKYO (UPI) — Now that summer vacations are here, Japanese parents have difficulty getting children to bed before the racy late-night television programs come on.

Television here is somewhat schizophrenic. There's innocent family fare during prime time, but anything goes after midnight.

That's when three channels usually turn blue.

Bare-breasted women dressed as Indians and cowgirls prance around the stage doing square dances. On a typical night recently, one channel featured a kind of erotic ballet performed by a man and woman dressed in brief g-strings.

Earlier in the evening, an innocent young songstress dressed in white knee socks and a short dress with a little white collar, sang about first love.

On one of the most popular late night shows, guests drink whisky, tell off-color stories and watch excerpts from pornographic films which they later discuss. The talk is interspersed with strip tease performances and gambling games.

Another channel showed a film of a man caressing a model attired in a black slip, followed by a discussion about the sexiness of black slips.

On a third channel, a man interviewed a woman in a topless bathing suit (held up by suspenders). When the interview was over everyone called out "show time!" and a stripper dressed in silver danced slowly out of her clothes.

These risque programs generally include one or two well-endowed women as set decorations. They sit around giggling at the offcolor stores, much like the hostesses in Tokyo's bars and night clubs.

These shows are a far cry from dinnertime TV.

Early evening viewers prefer Agnes Chan, 18, a student and pop music idol from Hong Kong who dresses as a 12-year-old and sings in a quavering, childish voice while brushing tear from her cheek with one finger.

Also popular are the "Finger Five," four brothers and a sister ranging in age from eight to mid-teens who dress alike and sing Japanese rock tunes.

The child cult reaches absurd proportions in the family song contest shows.

LIFE WITH FATHER — Hal Holbrook portrays Abraham Lincoln in the NBC-TV series, "Sandburg's Lincoln." The six one-hour programs starts Sept. 6. In the dinner table scene from the first episode, "Mrs. Lincoln's Husband," Lincoln's two sons are played by John Levin, foreground, as Tad, and Michael-James Wixted as Willie. The series is a presentation of David L. Wolper Productions.

Lyric Opera to present Verdi's 'La Traviata'

The Lyric Opera Association of Orange County will present Verdi's "La Traviata" in the Irvine Bowl, Laguna Beach, at 8 p.m. Sept. 6 and 7.

In the role of Violetta will be lyric coloratura Gloria Marinacci, making her Southern California debut under her maiden name after establishing an international reputation as Gloria Cutsforth.

Other leads will be sung by Thomas Oberjat of Van Nuys, Alfredo; Wayne Eikenberry of Glendora, Germont; Geraldine Decker of Oxnard, Flora; and Ralph Bassett of Santa Ana, Dr. Grenvil.

Miss Marinacci, a busy singer with a repertoire of 30 operatic roles and 20 oratorio and symphonic pieces, will be directed by Patrick Tavernia, stage director of the New York Metropolitan Opera, and Michael Kurkjian, conductor and musical director of the Lyric Opera Association.

Miss Marinacci has appeared on three continents and in command performances for Prince Ranier and Princess Grace and the Queen of Thailand. Most recently she lived in Rome where she studied with Luigi Ricci.

Recognized for acting ability as well as vocal technique, Miss Marinacci recently performed in a non-singing role in a Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation with Peter Ustinov and Jose Ferrer. She is a member of the Seattle Opera, where she has sung alternate performances with soprano Beverly Sills.

KELLY GARRETT, singing star of the CBS television series, The Hit Parade, will perform at Busch Gardens in Van Nuys Aug. 26 and 27. She has performed on the Dean Martin Show, Tonight, and the Mike Douglas Show and appeared in "Words and Music" and "Mother Earth" on Broadway.

Debbie Reynolds back in musical

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) — It is refreshing in these uncertain years of the theater to find a long term commitment being carried out, as in the case of the "Irene" musical.

Such contracts can be drawn in good faith by all parties concerned, yet, after a couple of years, there can be various developments beyond control of any of those involved that nullify the original plans. There have been numerous examples.

So, when I talked to Debbie Reynolds 'way back there in the fall of 1972 as she was rehearsing for the revised revival of 1919's "Irene," I made a mental reservation, out of experience, when she told me that she would be taking a leave of absence from the show after a year, then come back to it for a long tour.

Matter of fact, who knew at that time that "Irene" would run a year on Broadway?

Well, it has done so, and beyond that, and here comes Miss Reynolds back off the big time night club circuit, including London, to take up where she left off last February, just as promised.

Jane Powell moved into the title role of the musical at the Minskoff Theater last February when Miss Reynolds had to leave to meet prior commitments to night clubs. Miss Lowell kept the nostalgic entertainment afloat in good fashion for more than seven months.

Miss Reynolds returns to the cast for the show's final New York week, Sept. 2 through Sept. 7. She will continue with it as an extensive national tour is understaken, beginning with an engagement at the Arie Crown Theater in Chicago on Sept. 11.

Ensuing engagements include Dallas, Los Angeles, Houston, and Oklahoma City, where current bookings end next Jan. 25. If the tour continues after that, Miss Powell may have to spell Miss Reynolds because the latter again will have other commitments to meet.

But, if the producers decide to take the production to London after that, as well they might, don't bet that Miss Reynolds won't be aboard.

Frank Loesser, noted composer and lyricist, has been dead these several years, but there is a new show of his in the making.

The creator of such Broadway hits as "Guys and Dolls" and "The Most Happy Fella" also provided the songs for the 1950s screen musical produced by the late Samuel Goldwyn, "Hans Christian Andersen," dealing with the Danish creator of fairy tales.

Jo Sullivan Loesser, Frank's widow and the leading lady of "The Most Happy Fella," recently discovered in his files four numbers he wrote for the movie that were not used in it and three other unknown songs that fit into such a background.

The result will be a stage musical titled "Wonderful Copenhagen," which will star England's Tommie Steele and is scheduled for a December production in London. It will, of course, include established hits of the motion picture such as "Anywhere I Wander," "Thumbellina" and "The King's New Clothes," to name a few.

BEAUTIFUL BALLET — Patricia McBride and members of the New York City Ballet perform the classic ballet, "Swan Lake," in the Greek Theater, Los Angeles, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The troupe is presenting four different programs during its two-week Los Angeles engagement that opened Monday.

Hollywood Shorts

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Beah Richards, who played Sidney Poitier's mother in "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?" will record "A Black Woman Speaks and Other Poems."

★ ★ ★

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Robert Redford and Norman Jewison each won a David De Donatello prize, Italy's most prestigious film award, for "The Sting" and "Jesus Christ Superstar" respectively.

★ ★ ★

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Tim Conway and Don Knotts will comprise a new comedy team for Disney Studios in "The Apple Dumpling Gang" which stars Bill Bixby.

★ ★ ★

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Harold Robbins' new novel, "The Pirate," will be published in England and the United States Sept. 25.

★ ★ ★

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Barbara Eden will star in the ABC-TV movie, "Trespass," with George Grizzard and Nehemiah Persoff. TV and Screen Gems series.

★ ★ ★

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sir Ralph Richardson has been signed for a leading role in "Rollerball," which begins filming in Munich this month.

He will portray a computer manager of all the world's information in the film about a lethal competitive sport played in a world controlled by giant corporate powers.

★ ★ ★

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Brenda Vaccaro and Barry Sullivan have been signed to guest star in "The Most Deadly Species" episode of "The Streets of San Francisco."

Also signed for the TV series fall starter were Johnny Weissmuller, Jr., and Dennis Patrick.

★ ★ ★

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Emmy award-winner John Rich will direct "IBM Presents Clarence Darrow," starring Henry Fonda, an NBC-TV special scheduled to air Sept. 4.

It is based on Fonda's critically acclaimed stage portrait of the famous trial lawyer.

VIKKI CARR, night club, television and recording star, will apper on KMPC's fifth annual "Show of the World" at the Forum in Inglewood Sept. 28. The concert is a benefit for the Permanent Charities Committee of the Entertainment Industries.

Dutch combo serves up 'Hamburger Concerto'

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hamburger is 100 per cent American, but when it is served up by Focus it is a real Dutch treat.

"Hamburger Concerto" is the name of the latest album by Focus (Atco ED 36 100) and as far as quality goes it is prime filet mignon.

Focus — which consists of Jan Akkerman, Thijs Van Leer, Bert Ruiter and Colin Allen — so far has been the outstanding Dutch contemporary group. It has won numerous awards in a field dominated by British rock musicians and it has built up a large following in the United States.

At the time that Focus entered the international competition about four years ago it attempted to avoid the rock label but its audiences consists mostly of late teeners, although it is looked upon favorably, too, by those past thirty.

Akkerman is considered one of the best, if not the best, of the modern guitarists. Van Leer is a superb flute player, good enough to play in a symphony orchestra or a chamber music group. Ruiter and Allen offer excellent support on the percussion instruments.

"Hamburger Concerto" occupies the entire second side of the record, with such movement titles as starter, rare, medium and well done. The concerto has a fluid forward motion which never stalls. It is very good music, good enough to earn a permanent place in a record collections.

The first side begins with "Delitiae Musicae," which has a strong classic flavor. The second number, "Harem Scarem," an exposition in riffs and variations, is doing well as a single and is the highlight of the first side.

★ ★ ★

Another strong group among the current bands is Refugee, composed of Lee Jackson and Brian Davison —who played with the Nice —and Patrick Moraz, an outstanding man on the keyboards who has written 25 film scores.

Their album is called "Refugee". The Famous Charisma Label (FC 6066) and it holds attention from beginning to end.

Refugee would have been wiser, however, if it had saved the opening number, "Papillon," for the end of the album because it is the outstanding number. Even so, there is no let down.

FIDDLIN' AROUND — Merle Haggard will make one of his rare concert appearances at the Anaheim Convention Center at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 25. With him will be his band, The Strangers, Don Bowman and country-western singer-composer, Dolly Parton.

Sun (3-3) gets even

Southern California beats Houston, 18-7

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

HOUSTON, Texas — Chalk one up for the defense and special teams!

The Southern California Sun defeated the Houston Texans 18-7 Thursday night in the Astrodome. The win put The Sun back in first place in the WFL West with a 3-3 record while the Texans dropped to second with a 2-3-1 mark.

The Sun now is not only .500 overall, it also is .500 (2-2) on the road and .500 (1-1) at home.

The Sun offense accounted for just four of the 18 points. The defense and the special teams each scored seven points.

Quarterbacks Tony Adams and Gary Valbuena completed only 8 of 24 passes. Adams hit on just 4 of 13 for 48 yards. Valbuena connected on 4 of 11 for 103 yards including a 50-yarder to Dave Williams who was knocked out of bounds on the Houston two as the first half ended.

"We were terrible offensively in the first half," said coach Tom Fears. "But when we mixed up our plays and went to play action and passing in the second, we began to move."

Fears was only half right. The Sun offense WAS terrible in the first half when it had the ball for 29 plays (compared to Houston's 36) and netted 159 yards.

But it wasn't much better, except for a field goal, in the second half. The Sun ran only 27 plays (Houston again had 36) and netted just 126 yards.

Perhaps Fears was overcome by the field goal. Flemming Jensen, fourth Sun place kicker in the last four games, booted a 19-yarder in the fourth quarter. It capped an eight-play drive that covered 38 yards during which the Sun converted a third down situation into a first down for the only time in the game.

The field goal also marked the first successful attempt at a three pointer by the Sun in the six games it has played.

But it was the defense and special teams that won it. Or, maybe it was the youth of the Sun (average age 23) overcoming the experience and age (average 29 plus) of the Texans who may have suffered an energy crunch of their own and run out of gas.

With slightly over 11 minutes left in the third quarter, Odom got off a 41-yard punt which Jack Conners fielded on the Sun 10-yard line.

Conners started up field, cut to his right, broke through a host of would-be tacklers and sped 90 yards to a touchdown tying the score at 7-7. It set a new WFL record.

An interception by Jim Bowman and a 30-yard return started the drive that ended in Jensen's field goal which gave the Sun its first lead, 10-7, in the game. It came with just 2:09 left in the contest.

A minute and a half later it was Durwood Keeton's chance. The Texans had the ball and a first down on the Sun 33-yard line with time running out.

Backup quarterback Don Trull, who played the entire second half, attempted to throw the ball out of bounds to stop the clock. When he did was lob it right into the hands of Keeton, the strong safety.

Keeton stepped in and grabbed the ball then sprinted 66 yards down the left sideline for a touchdown to clinch the win. He was so elated he held the ball high above his head for all to see the last 20 yards.

"We knew they had to stop the clock by going deep or for the quick out," grinned Keeton. "I told Bowman to go deep and I went for the quick out. They tried the quick one and I have to credit coach Ed (Cody) on how to pick off the quick out.

"I knew I was gone when I got it," he continued. "Heck, there wasn't anybody there to stop me."

Leading the defensive charge all night was Dave Roller, the big NFL (New York Giants) and CFL (Hamilton) veteran. Roller wound up with 12 unassisted tackles, one assisted tackle and two quarterback sacks. Houston backs lost 32 yards on Roller tackles.

It was sweet revenge because Houston coach Jim Garret was an assistant coach when Roller played in New York.

"I don't like Garrett," frowned the big tackle. "He cut me (from the team) when I was with the Giants. I told him I'd get even and I did."

Roller left the game briefly in the third quarter when he suffered a hyper-extended knee while throwing running back Virgil Robinson for a two-yard loss. But the 6-2, 272-pounder who also has bone chips in his elbow, was back in the next series and threw Robinson for a four yard loss.

"I don't know why, but the knee goes every once in a while," he grinned. "I'm sore now, but I'll be ready in a couple of days."

Fears agreed. "He's big and strong. He plays hard and he gets hurt, but he's always ready when the bell rings."

Explaining the proficiency and frequency with which Roller gets to ball carriers, Fears said, "Dave has great quickness. This enables him to shoot one of the gaps. He doesn't always get the quarterback, but he does force him out of the pocket.

Indeed. Late in the first half, Roller shot the gap, forced Taliaferro out of the pocket, caught him, picked him up and flung him to the turf so hard Taliaferro had to be helped to the sidelines where he required six stitiches and where he spent the rest of the game.

SUN SPOTS — Connors dislocated an elbow and will be out three to four weeks. Kermit Johnson had his "bell rung" and left the game after netting only 28 yards on 10 carries. His replacement, Ralph Nelson, gained 38 in the same number of rushes and got that third-down conversion.

INTREPID AND COURAGEOUS

American 12-meter yachts, Intrepid (top) and Courageous battle in close quarters shortly after the start of their race Thursday as round robin series started to choose one of four yachts to defend America's Cup next month. Intrepid won by 31 seconds, while Mariner defeated Valiant.

Brewer out; Dodgers call on Shanahan

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Veteran Los Angeles Dodger reliever Jim Brewer has been placed on the 21-day disabled list for the second time this season because of a back injury, the team announced Thursday.

The Dodgers, who meet the Pittsburgh Pirates here tonight, called up pitcher Greg Shanahan from the Albuquerque, N.M., farm team to take Brewer's place.

Brewer returned to Los Angeles to undergo treatment. The 36-year-old pitcher was removed from the disabled list last Saturday when it was believed his shoulder was improved. However, he reinjured the shoulder while warming up in the bullpen Tuesday night.

Brewer has not pitched since July 14 and has a 4-3 record for the Dodgers.

Shanahan, 4-11 at Albuquerque, joined the team today.

Don Sutton (10-8) will be gunning for his fifth straight win tonight when the Dodgers take on the Pirates in the first game of a three-game series.

Dock Ellis (8-8) will oppose Sutton in the opener.

The Dodgers, losers of three straight and six of their last eight have seen their National League West lead over Cincinnati shrink to 4½ games. The Dodgers led by 7½ on Aug. 5.

The Reds will meet the New York Mets in Cincinnati tonight.

Andy Messersmith (13-4) will meet Jerry Reuss (12-9) Saturday and either Geoff Zahn (2-2) or Al Downing (4-6) will face Larry Demery (3-4) Sunday.

LONG KICKOFF RETURN

Southern California Sun running back Ralph Nelson returns the kickoff 39 yards during first quarter Thursday night.

Murphy receives help in Hartford

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UPI) — Bob Murphy, fun-loving tour veteran, loves to play golf in Hartford.

"The Good Lord must have been a Hartford Jaycee," cracked Murphy, who last won in 1970. "I seem to get help here."

Murphy and Dave Stockton fired identical rounds of 32-33-65 Thursday to snare the first day lead of the $200,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open at the Wethersfield Country Club.

Murphy, who left the tour for nearly four months while recovering from an operation on his left thumb, was "very, very happy" with his opening round.

"The crowds like me," smiled Murphy, who has not won a PGA tournament since his GHO victory here four years ago. "They clap their hands. They scream. The fans really egg me on. Essentially, we're all showoffs out there on the course, and it's fun to show off in front of people who like you."

Murphy had six birdies and no bogeys as his short iron game was on target. The longest putt of his round was a six-footer.

Stockton, who matched Murphy's 6-under-par total over the 6,583-yard par 71 course, dropped five putts of 15 feet and over for birdies, and saved par twice with putts of 10 feet.

Of the 144 starters, 89 matched or bettered par during the first round.

Defending champion Billy Casper, who won with a 20-under-par total a year ago, finished with a 73, placing him far back in the pack and in danger of missing the cut. Last year, the cutoff point after two rounds was 2 under.

Just one stroke in back of Murphy and Stockton stands tour rookie Eddie Pearce and veteran Bruce Devlin, who both carded under-par 66s.

Two strokes behind the leaders was a quartet of players, headed by the tour's second leading money winner, Hubert Green. Joining Green in the group at 67 were George Johnson, Jerry McGee and Don Bliss.

Lee Trevino, still smiling after his major championship victory at the PGA, leads a group of 14 wh shot 3-under-par 68s.

Trevino, despite bogeying two of the last three holes, said he had played "very well."

"Except for the finish and one three-putt green, I was very pleased," he said. "I hit my pitching wedge extremely well. That was the reason for most of my six birdies."

In the logjam at 68 with Trevino were past champion Bob Goalby, J.C. Snead, Grier Jones, Butch Baird, Don Iverson, Larry Nelson, John Schroeder, John Lister, Albert Salinas, Andy North, Dwight Nevil, John Mahaffey and Bob Wynn.

Gary Player, co-favorite with Trevino, shot a 69, and echoed the sentiments of most of the pros when he said, "The greens here are as good as any I've ever seen.

Gary Brewer, Bert Yancey, Ray Floyd and recent Pleasant Valley titlist Victor Regalado were in the group at 69.

A flock of veterans, including Gene Littler, Bruce Crampton, Ken Still, Mason Rudolph and Phil Rodgers, were in the huge crowd at 70.

The 72-hole event, with a top prize of $40,000, concludes Sunday. Most of the tour's top pros are competing here, with Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Tom Weiskopf and Johnny Miller the notable exceptions.

Ram owner says settlement isn't near in dispute

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles Ram owner Carroll Rosenbloom, addressing his players and coaches Thursday, said negotiators for the striking NFL Players Association and the NFL management were "farther apart than ever."

Rosenbloom told the players that "nobody is winning" in the dispute, and added, "regardless of what you have heard, the negotiators have never been close. And we are farther apart now than ever before."

Rosenbloom said after the meeting he was confident no Rams would leave camp after the 14-day "cooling off" period expires in two weeks. "They're here to play football," he said.

Several players, including linebacker Isiah Robertson, have said the veterans could very well walk out again if the strike is not settled during the two-week period.

Rosenbloom denied charges that the owners were trying to break the union and said, "It is our desire to have a strong players' association with qualified leadership."

The Rams waived kicker Johnny Antoniess, a free agent, after drills Thursday.

Milton Richman comments:

WFL falling apart at the seams?

NEW YORK(UPI) — Do you hear a creaking noise? I do, and something tells me it's the sound of the not yet one-year-old World Football League beginning to give at the seams.

First there was the The Big Lie by the Philadelphia Bell and the subsequent public confession that all isn't gold that glitters nor are all those sitting in the seats necessarily paying customers.

Now come the owners of the Florida Blazers confirming they are thinking of moving their ball club from Orlando to Atlanta. This would be the fourth city the club has moved to in seven months, and right on the heels of this report there's another one that the New York Stars are up for sale and will be sold sometime in the next few weeks.

Birmingham is one WFL franchise doing well. Memphis, Southern California and Jacksonville also are keeping their heads above water. But Hawaii, Houston, Portland, Philadelphia and Orlando are experiencing considerable difficulty.

The Detroit Wheels are in trouble also. So ar, they've been nothing more than a brand new set of flat tires.

The Wheels are 0-6, never having won a single game in their history yet, and there is talk of them winding up in Charlotte, N.C. before the year is out. Anytime a WFL club is in trouble, it starts looking toward Charlotte. Who knows, maybe that's because a branch of the U.S. mint operated there for nearly a quarter century.

Anyway, the Detroit Wheels are using Ypsilanti, Mich., as their headquarters now, and one of the things that hurts them is they can't play in Detroit Stadium because the NFL's Lions got there first. What hurts more is that they aren't even filling the 22,000-seat field they have in Ypsilanti.

The club isn't taking much in at the gate and is losing every time out on the field. There is no better way to go broke, and if you ask Sonny Grandelius, the general manager of the Wheels, if he's concerned, his answer is what you'd expect it to be—yes.

"We've compounded our problems," he says, "because this is a club which began with 33 owners who put up a

Ryan is pitching again tonight—look out!

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Major league strikeout king Nolan Ryan goes gunning for another record tonight night and if the California Angels fireballer is close to form, the best-located spectator in the house better be prepared to duck.

Veteran umpire Marty Springstead could well warn whoever is behind the plate calling balls and strikes. He drew the assignment when the soft-spoken Texan put together his American League record-setting 19-strikeout performance against the Boston Red Sox last Monday night.

"I got hit on the neck, on the side, four times on the mask— once in each spot," the muscular Springstead not so eagerly recalled. The nine-year veteran ump could well be excused for gritting his teeth a little.

He counted at least seven foul-tips from Ryan fastballs that glanced off him. Besides getting the feeling he was in a target range, none of the richocheting shots found their way to a place where he was best prepared —like his chest protecter.

"Naturally it hurts," said Springstead, who has already lost two fillings and gotten a chipped tooth this season from baseballs bouncing off his face mask.

"But you can't get shellshocked. You have to get it out of your mind and tell yourself, 'I'm not dead yet.'"

The only concession Springstead made to the whizzing baseballs —each greeted by an amused roar of the crowd when the balls succeeded in beaning him —was a few time outs to do a little extra brushing off of home-plate.

"You have to regain your composure," he explained.

Ryan broke Bob Feller's 1938 American League mark of 18 strikeouts in a nine-inning game and tied Steve Carlton and Tom Seaver's major league record with his 19 against the Red Sox.

The 27-year-old from Alvin, Tex., sets out against Clyde Wright and the Milwaukee Brewers Friday night to establish the big league standard for strikeouts in three straight games.

He is now tied with Boston's Luis Tiant and former Los Angeles Dodger Sandy Koufax for the three-game record with 41. He has 32 in his last two games.

The 6-0, 180-pound Springstead, a World Series and All-Star Game veteran, calls the hard-throwing Ryan the fastest he has ever seen.

"There's no doubt about it," said Springstead, a native of Nyack, N.Y. "No one throws harder than Ryan. Nobody's could compare with Ryan's fastball. I've been around since Whitey Ford and not even Sam McDowell threw that hard."

The very speed of Ryan's pitches makes it sometimes dangerous for an umpire, who has to stay on top of the ball, says Springstead.

"It sails a lot and with that amount of velocity the ball has a tendency to rise," he said. "The batters undercut it and you get a lot of foul tips thrown in your face. It's never been as bad as Monday night though. Ryan got stronger as the game went on."

Springstead considers working the plate when Ryan is pitching just another assignment, though.

"You take them as they come," he said. "You can't develop a dislike for working certain pitchers because then you develop a mental block. You know how a pitcher throws; you just have to adjust yourself.

"It's a job you do every day and you can't think about anything other than being fair."

FIRST WORKOUT — Denver Bronco NFL player representative Jim Turner practices field goals as coach John Ralston watches the Broncs' first practice of the 'cooling off' period. Ralston was pleasantly surprised to find his veterans in such good shape.

Vets begin their season

By United Press International

The first National Football League pre-season weekend this season with veterans available for duty begins in Detroit tonight and coaches are hoping to have a lot of questions answered.

The Oakland Raiders take on the Lions in tonight's only game while eight games are scheduled for Saturday, three for Sunday and one Monday night.

The big questions the coaches will look to have answered are just what kind of shape the veterans are in after more than 40 days of striking and how rookies who have played the first two or three pre-season games will react when facing experienced players.

Most coaches have expressed surprise at how well-conditioned their veterans came in after the strike, which is in the fourth day of a two-week cooling off period the Players Association hopes will facilitate bargaining for a new contract. Only play under game conditions can answer the question about the rookies and that will come this weekend.

Saturday the New York Jets meet New York Giants at New Haven, Conn., in a day game while at night, Baltimore plays Cleveland at Tampa, Fla., Cincinnati is at Atlanta, Houston at Dallas, Kansas City at Los Angeles, Pittsburgh at Philadelphia, St. Louis at San Diego and Chicago at Green Bay.

Denver is at San Francisco Sunday afternoon while New Orleans is at New England and Buffalo at Washington at night and the Super Bowl clubs — Miami and Minnesota—meet in Florida Monday night on national television.

In news from the camps Friday, the Denver Broncos announced that veteran wide receiver Gene Washington will undergo surgery for a torn cartilage in his ankle and will miss the season. Broncos Coach John Ralston was pleased with his veterans' performance as he opened drill.

"I was skeptical they wouldn't come in from the strike in real good shape," said Ralston. "When they work out under their own guidance, you wonder. But overall, I was very surprised with the excellent condition our men reported in. We're not going to have to lose any time on conditioning."

Cincinnati Coach Paul Brown predicted that "seven or eight new men" could make his club. "That's a pretty high percentage," said Brown. "Anyone we cut is going to say it's strike related. It's not true at all. Obviously we can't keep them all and we have seven or eight new men I think are going to make it.

"As an illustration, say we've got two guys of equal ability at a position but one is six to eight years younger and also quicker. You have to take things like that into consideration."

San Francisco traded star running back Vic Washington to Houston for a No. 1 draft pick next year and a No. 3 the following season. Washington and Coach Dick Nolan got into a rhubarb about Washington's missing practice and Nolan ordered him out of camp.

At Green Bay, veterans Carlton Oats, Ike Williams and Bob Kroll failed their physicals and were waived. Veteran defensive tackle Mike McCoy said he will not report to the Packer camp until he settles his contract.

The New York Jets announced that quarterback Joe Namath will not play against the Giants. Coach Charley Winner said Namath has had too little time to learn a new offense and he will leave him behind at the Jets' camp to work out with several other veterans. Rookie John Jones will start at quarterback for the Jets, who lost starting guard Randy Rasmussen Thursday with a broken hand.

Pittsburgh put veteran offensive tackle Mel Holmes on waivers and New England released quarterback Brian Dowling, who is scheduled to join the World Football League next season. Philadelphia dropped veteran linebacker John Sodaski, who was claimed immediately by Denver, and veteran center Wayne Mulligan left the St. Louis Cardinals' camp for "personal reasons".

Perry finally wins No. 16

By United Press International

Gaylord Perry is back in the win column—with the help of a relief pitcher who can't win for losing.

Perry, who had lost six straight games since his near-American League record string of 15 straight victories ended on July 3, gained his 16th win Thursday night when the Cleveland Indians defeated the Minnesota Twins 4-2.

The victory moved the Indians to within 3 ½ games of the idle Boston Red Sox in the American League's Eastern Division.

Perry, 16-7, allowed five hits in seven innings but was relieved by Tom Buskey after walking Steve Braun to open the eighth.

Buskey, acquired in the controversial multi-player deal with the New York Yankees June 15, has pitched extremely well for the Indians but has an 0-4 won-lost record. The 6-foot-2, 210-pound right-hander set down all six batters he faced to preserve Perry's victory and received credit for his 13th save.

The Baltimore Orioles defeated the Chicago White Sox, 2-1 in the other American League game and the Chicago Cubs beat the Houston Astros 5-3 in a National League game. No other games were played in the majors Thursday.

Buskey, who has made 34 appearances for the Indians and probably is the best pitcher in the majors without a victory this season, got an extra run in the eighth on a double by George Hendrick, a hit batter, a sacrifice by John Ellis and a sacrifice fly by Tom McCraw.

The Indians staked Perry to a 1-0 lead in the third but Tony Oliva's 11th homer of the season tied the score in the fourth. Frank Duffy's two-run single in the sixth inning gave the Indians a 3-1 lead and eventually turned out to be the decisive blow of the game.

Mike Cuellar gained his 14th victory for the Orioles with the help of homers by Earl Williams and Paul Blair. Williams hit his ninth homer with one out in the fourth and Blair hit his 13th in the fifth. The White Sox scored their run of Cuellar, 13-9, in the seventh when Ron Santo and Brian Downing walked and Buddy Bradford singled. Jim Kaat suffered his 10th loss against 13 wins for the White Sox.

Billy Williams' 2,5000th major league hit triggered a three-run eighth inning rally, ended by a two-run error by second baseman Larry Milborne, enabled the Cubs to beat the Astros. Jerry Morales hit his 12th homer and Jim Todd won his third game for the Cubs.

McMillan wins NASL rookie honor

LOS ANGELES — Los Angeles Aztec forward Douglas McMillan has been named Rookie-of-the-year in the North American Soccer League.

Dallas' Kyle Rote Jr. won the award voted by the players in last season's ballotting.

"It's a fantastic award," said the 29-year-old McMillan. "I may be older than most rookies on the calendar but I don't think any of the rookies in the league had more drive or enthusiasm than myself."

McMillan finished third in the NASL scoring race with 10 goals and 10 assists for 30 points. San Jose's Paul Child topped the race with 36 points while Baltimore's Peter Silvester finished second with 31 points.

McMillan led the NASL in scoring throughout most of the season until the final three games.

"There was a lot more pressure on me than I would like to admit," says McMillan. "I didn't think it would happen to me or that it was happening until I would miss the points.

"I had never thought about myself like that before. I was always interested in the team winning not how many goals or assistts I got.

"I really noticed the pressure put on me by other teams during the second half of the season," continued McMillan. "Players were coming up to me and telling me that they were going to kick everything in sight including me. They were going to kick everything in sight including me. They marked the hell out of me the second half. I had players hitting me when I was even far away from the play."

McMillan feels that pressure will be off him Saturday night when the Aztecs host the semifinal NASL playoff game.

Evel's not crazy, just clever--pal

KEWANEE, Ill. (UPI) — Evel Knievel —who plans to jump across a canyon in Idaho on a motorcycle —isn't a suicidal maniac, his mechanic says, he just wants people to think he is.

In fact, says the mechanic, Roger Reiman, Kneivel has about a 70 per cent chance of successfully jumping the 800-foot-wide, mile-deep chasm this Labor Day.

"In my opinion, it will be a successful jump," he said, adding, "he has a parachute system just in case.

"He's a very smart man and he knows what he's doing. He's not going out there to commit suicide. He likes to make everybody think that's what he's going to do."

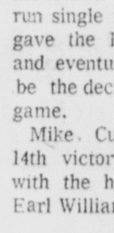

N.W. League holds ceremony

The Pomona Northwest Little League will hold its "Dime-a-Dip" awards ceremony Saturday morning at 11:30 a.m. at Kennedy Park.

All coaches from the league are urged to inform their players about the ceremony. All players are encouraged to bring their uniforms to the event. Pictures will also be available at that time.

For additional information, contact Sadie Porter at 622-9579.

BONNEVILLE BOUND — Jim Lattin, 38, leaves today for the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah where he will try to break the land speed record in the fuel coupe X-class. He'll drive this 296 cubic inch Ford flat head Studebaker when Bonneville Speed Week begins Sunday. Lattin, a resident of the valley for 31 years, is the owner of High Grace Plating Co. in Pomona.

NFL talks reach point of no return

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bargaining sessions to end the prolonged pro football dispute reached a critical stage today which could head in either direction—a resumed player strike within two weeks or settlement in a matter of days.

Representatives of the NFL Players Association and the owners' Management Council reconvened at 10 a.m. EDT with federal mediators.

Participants were non-committal as to whether a two-week strike-ending "cooling off" period initiated by the union would be productive.

Meanwhile, all but a handful of striking players were back in training camp and ready to swing into action in the third week of the NFL's pre-season schedule beginning tonight.

At the Labor Department in Washington, the two sides conferred with James Scearce, deputy director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service for four hours Friday. Scearce presided in the absence of director W. J. Usery Jr., who persuaded the players' association to lift the 44-day-old strike this week as a "good faith" gesture.

However, the players reserved their right to walk out of camp when the truce ends if no contract settlement is reached. Such a move would occur only less than a month prior to the opening of the regular NFL season and could create consternation among the ranks of the coaches.

During a four-hour session Thursday, the players and the owners indicated a willingness to tackle their differences which center mainly on the union's controversial "freedom demands." The atmosphere was viewed by mediators as "encouraging" but as Usery said last week, before the players agreed to end the strike temporarily, "We're about where we should have been a month ago."

Ladies begin St. Paul Open

ST. PAUL, MINN. (UPI) — Fifty-seven members of the Ladies Professional Golf Association open the St. Paul Ladies Open tournament today, all intent on the $35,000 purse and a few clamoring for equal rights for women.

First prize in the three-day tourney is $5,000 and among those vying for it are Sandra Palmer, last year's winner, and Jane Blalock, who tied for second in 1973.

Miss Blalock is this year's second best money winner at $61,715, topped only by Joanne Carner with $63,469. The two are followed by Joann Prentice with $61,113. Both Miss Carner and Miss Prentice also will be among today's players.

Regardless of her winnings, Miss Blalock is miffed about the "small" $40,000 purse of the U.S. Women's Open. The winner in the tourney last month, she said, got $6,000. The Men's U.S. Open winner this year, Hale Irwin, got $40,000— "as much as our entire purse," she said.

Miss Blalock was among the leaders last month of women players who threatened to boycott the Women's Open.

"We deserve more," she said Thursday on the eve of the three-day tourney.

Last year's winning total in the St. Paul tourney was a 10-under-par 209 54 holes. Some observers feel the par 73, 6,200-yard layout on Keller Golf Course will prove tougher this year.

Miss Carner's husband, Don, referring to himself as "sort of an unofficial handicapper of the women's tour," said "six or seven under par seems like a reasonable winning score to me."

His wife added that the ball doesn't seem to get much roll on the fairway and that the par fours are definitely not drive and wedge holes.

Judy Rankin, who tied for second with Miss Blalock last year, said she hoped the greens would be cut a little.

"You almost have to pivot to get the ball to the hole on longer putts," she said.

There was a possibility of showers, and that, too, was likely to raise scores.

Hunters get tag warning

With the opening of the coastal deer season, the Department of Fish and Game has cautioned hunters that wardens will strictly enforce tagging regulations.

Fish and Game Code section 4336 provides that the successful hunter must immediately fill out both parts of the deer tag, punch out the date of the kill, attach one part to an antler and send the other part to the DFG after the tab has been validated.

The validation procedure is provided for in section 4341 of the code. Section 4340 states that any person violating the law will forfeit his tags for the balance of the license year.

The deer tag law and tag validation requirements are explained on pages 35 and 36 of the regulations booklet available from DFG offices and license agents.

Sadler plans big boxing exhibition

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Dick Sadler, the man who guided Olympic boxing champion George Foreman to the world heavyweight title, plans to bring Foreman, Joe Frazier and Muhammad Ali together here for a benefit exhibition.

Sadler said the three heavyweight champions will appear in the 12,500-seat Salt Palace Sept. 3 in behalf of "Project Survival."

Funds derived from the benefit will be channeled to a gigantic relief program aimed at solving drought conditions in a central region of Africa.

Carroll said the area inhabited by eight million people includes portions of Zaire, where Foreman and Ali will meet Sept. 24 for the world heavyweight title, a major area in Mali and in four other countries.

The benefit is being sponsored here by Beehive Boxing and KMOR radio station. Sadler, chairman of "Project Survival," recently purchased controlling interest in the radio station.

Sadler said the world's three top heavyweights will spar a few rounds. He also said two live cards would be presented, and the purses would go to the charity.

Stars, Kings play tonight

The Pomona All-Stars will attempt to upset the Pomona Kings tonight in a exhibition doubleheader at Washington Park. The first game gets underway at 7 p.m., with the second contest starting after a 15-minute break.

The event almost puts the finishing touches on the Pomona Park and Recreation Departments' adult civic fast pitch softball program for the summer. It was scheduled to be the final game, but FMC-Wayne and Church of God tied for the National League title forcing a playoff game Monday evening.

For the Kings the games will serve as warmups for ASA playoffs that begin Saturday.

San Francisco trades Washington to Oilers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers Thursday traded Vic Washington, their leading ground gainer of the past two seasons, to the Houston Oilers.

The trade had been foreshadowed by a dispute between Washington and 49er coach Dick Nolan which led to the 196-pound halfback's expulsion from training camp.

According to the agreement discussed by club president Lou Spadia, Washington was dealt to Houston for a first-round draft choice in 1976 and a third in 1977.

Washington announced on his own Thursday that he would go over Nolan's head — to management, players and fans—in hopes of remaining with the San Francisco team.

But Spadia offered that Washington's resistance to the trade was a case of "overreacting."

"The trade has been consumated," Spadia said. "I wish the young man well. Perhaps he's over-reacting, but I'm sure he'll be with the Houston Oilers. They are a fine organization."

Washington told newsmen that he considered the trade as punishment from Nolan. He also said that if he could not change the decision he had "no choice but to go to Houston."

The fleet halfback gained 1813 yards in 483 carries as a three-year starter with the 49ers.

He was ordered out of the 49er camp following the San Diego Chargers game for missing four mandatory team appearances, including two practices.

Mundine will meet Monzon

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Commonwealth middleweight boxing champion Tony Mundine Thursday signed to meet world champion Carlos Monzon in a 15-round title match at Buenos Aires, Oct. 5.

Details of Mundine's share of the purse have not been released, but he is expected to receive a guarantee of more than $30,000, expenses, and a large share of Australian television rights.

Second-ranked by Ring Magazine in the July ratings, Mundine lost some of his prestige when he was knocked out by Bennie Briscoe of Philadelphia in Paris last February.

Mundine prepped for his Monzon fight with a fifth-round knockout over Nate Collins of Oakland, Calif., in Brisbane on Aug. 9

Blazers aren't ready to give up on Orlando

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — The city offered more parking and better police protection at the Tangerine Bowl Thursday to keep the Florida Blazers from moving to Atlanta and managing partner Rommie Loudd said it was "premature" to say the World Football League team would move.

However, Loudd did not completely rule out a shift of the Blazers, who have been able to win football games but not to draw crowds.

"Although I have been dismayed at the support given the team thus far, I am not ready to give up yet," Loudd said. "Although speculation will no doubt continue in the days ahead, I'm hoping the situation will straighten itself and allow the Blazers to continue their games in Orlando."

Loudd said, "It is premature to say that the Blazers are moving out of Orlando."

Published reports in Atlanta Wednesday indicated the Blazers might move within two weeks.

Loudd had complained Wednesday of a "lack of government cooperation. You can't have a successful franchise without a green light from downtown and we haven't had it."

Mayor Carl Langford said Thursday that until Loudd's published statements, he was unaware the Blazers had any complaints.

"I don't think the Blazers have one single justifiable complaint to lodge against the city of Orlando," Langford said.

However, he admitted the city had "inadvertently" asked the team to pay for extra police protection at home games in the Tangerine Bowl. The city offered that protection free Thursday and agreed to provide additional parking spaces near the stadium for spectators.

The Blazers had paid attendance of only about 11,000 at each of their first two home games but drew nearly twice that number Wednesday in defeating the Jacksonville Sharks.

certain amount of money and then were going to have a public sale of stock. The public sale of stock never materialized, so consequently our losses will be that much greater to each individual owner. It's a simple case of mathematics—anytime you're spending more than you're making, the money has to come from some place."

Yes, but where?

The situation could get worse for the Wheels.

They are one of the few WFL clubs which hasn't signed any NFL players for next year.

"One reason we have not signed any of those players is because we do not have the financial resources to do it," says Grandelius. "I've always operated with integrity. I'm not going to promise someone something that I can't deliver."

You get an idea of what the economic situation is with the Wheels by a story Grandelius tells about one of his earlier meetings with the team's owners.

"We were talking about pregame camp, and I said we should have it at someplace like Eastern Michigan University where they have the necessary dormitory facilities, locker rooms and so forth," says Grandelius.

"One of our owners piped up and said, 'well, why don't you put the players out on Belle Isle?' That is a city-owned area, and I said there weren't any accommodations available there. He said, 'well, why don't you put 'em up in tents? It would be just like camping out and the players would have a great time.'

"So I said, well, how are you going to feed 'em, how are they going to wash, how are they going to shave, and he says, 'oh, I didn't think of that!'"

"We would've been the laughing stock of the league if we had made our players pitch tents and camp out," Grandelius concludes.

True enough, but right then and there the WFL could have reached instant parity with the NFL.

It would have had a strike on its hands, too.

TAKING THE THROW — Carol Welch of the Super Streakers takes the throw at first base in girls softball tournament action Thursday. Super Streakers battled Super Stars for tourney title.

Poly names women's AD

Joining a trend in colleges and universities around the country, Cal Poly Pomona appointed Darlene May assistant athletic director in charge of women's athletics this week.

Athletic director Don Warhurst made the announcement and it came as no surprise to those following the rapid growth of women's athletics at the university.

Ms. May, 33, has a long list of achievements in women's athletics. She joins the Poly staff 10 years at Connelly High of Anaheim where she served as director of athletics for women as well as director of student activities.

"We are very fortunate to have a person of Darlene's capabilities, both as a coach and as an administrator here at Cal Poly," Warhurst said in making the announcement. "Her background is impressive and she will be an asset to our total athletic program."

In addition to serving as assistant athletic director under Warhurst, she will also coach softball and basketball at the university.

In basketball at Connelly High her record was 117-31, including of 29-0, and 20-1 seasons.

She was the only California official selected to referee in the National Women's Basketball Tournament held last year at Kansas State. As an additional honor she was named to officiate the championship game which is usually reserved for the top officials in the country.

"That was a great thrill," Darlene recalled. "To officiate that game meant many people thought I was one of the two best officials throughout the nation."

Last year she coached four sports at Mt. San Antonio College and two of the teams, field hockey and softball, won the Golden State League.

As a player, the new assistant athletic director has found success on the softball field.

Three times she was named to the National Women's All-American Team for her play as a centerfielder. She has participated in the National tournament six times and in 1961, was a member of the team which won the national championship.

"I hope my overall experience will be a benefit to the program at Cal Poly," Darlene said during a visit to the campus. "I've always been interested in coaching at the college level. My new position at the university is a real challenge and opportunity."

Darlene has one goal with two objectives. Not accustomed to losing, she wants to upgrade the women's program in competition and finances. "I want the Cal Poly women's athletic program to be known as a winner," she said.

Wimbledon star set for tourney

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Wimbledon champion Jimmy Connors will return to the scene of one of his earliest victories when he participates in next month's $100,000 Firemen's Fund International Open Tennis Championships.

Joining Connors will be Stan Smith of the U.S. and Romania's Ilie Nastase. A total of 64 players will compete in the eight-day event.

Streakers, Stars in title game

The Emerson Super Streakers meet the Emerson Super Stars tonight at 7 p.m. at Ted Greene Park in the finals of the Pomona Parks and Recreation Department Girls Softball Tournament.

The same two teams met Thursday night in the semis with the Streakers scoring six runs in the bottom of the last inning to nip the Stars 13-12.

Each team has one loss entering tonight's finals in the double elimination affair.

The Streakers had only four hits off losing pitcher Nancy Ramirez but the Stars committed eight errors, five of those coming in the fateful sixth frame.

Kelly Robinson had a key two-run single in the big inning for the winners and was followed by Carol Weigh's run-scoring double.

Sherry White provided most of the offense for the Stars banging out three hits in five at-bats, including a double, and driving in a run.

Eunice Newcome was the winning pitcher.

Upland tries for semifinal berth

Upland goes after a semifinal berth tonight in the first annual American Legion Invitational Tournament at John Glavin Park in Ontario.

The West End Legion team will take on Yucaipa in the feature 8:30 p.m. contest, while Claremont will try to remain alive in the tourney when it battles Tri-City in a consolation bracket game at 6 p.m.

Thursday night, Loara advanced to the finals of the tournament by nipping North Torrance in 11 innings, 7-6. Meanwhile, Savanna moved into the finals of the consolation bracket by knocking off West Covina, 2-0, on Jeff Toothman's two-hitter.

Toothman turned in a sparkling performance for Savanna, striking out 15 batters in the victory.

Loara scored its winning run in the top of the 11th inning by way of a North Torrance error.

There were a total of 12 errors in that game, while none were committed in the earlier contest.

The semifinals of the tourney will be played Saturday, with the finals being scheduled for Sunday at 1 p.m. (consolation) and 3:30 p.m. (championship).

SPORTS NEWS IN BRIEF

DENVER (UPI) — The Denver Broncos said Thursday veteran wide receiver Gene Washington would undergo surgery for a torn cartilege in his right ankle and would miss the 1974 season.

"This will be a strange experience for me," said Washington. "It will be the first fall in more than 15 years that I won't be playing football. I've never missed a season because of injuries before."

The Broncos said that Washington soon would undergo surgery at the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., for the ankle, damaged in 1973.

The announcement on Washington came as head coach John Ralston put Broncos' veterans through a workout with pads for the first time since they returned from the National Football League Players Association strike Wednesday.

Washington was acquired by the Broncos in 1973 from Mnnesota where in six seasons he caught 172 passes for more than 3,000 yards and 23 touchdowns.

Last year, with Denver, Washington caught 10 passes for 150 yards and three touchdowns.

"The doctors tell me I'll be in a cast for at least three months," said Washington. "Whether I'll be able to continue (to play) in 1975 will just have to wait."

Washington also said he was disappointed at being unable to play because he and other teammates believed 1974 was the year that the Broncos had a good chance to win the American Football Conference crown.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The $6,0000 Chris Evert collected for winning the recent U.S. Clay Courts championship in Indianapolis raised her prize money for 1974 to $109,210, tops on the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association women's professional tennis tour.

Miss Evert, of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., has not been beaten since last March 31 and owns a string of 42 consecutive set victories. Her total earnings, including Wimbledon, amount to $146,000 for the year.

The tour, currently in Toronto for the Canadian Open champsionships, moves to Newport, R.I., Aug. 19-25 and then to Forest Hills, N.Y. for the Aug. 28-Sept. 8 U.S. Open championships.

Billie Jean King of Palo Alto, Calif., ranks second in earnings with $78,500. Rounding out the top five are Rosemary Casals, San Francisco, $42,650 Kerry Melville, Australie, $40,240, and Virginia Wade, Britain, $28,775.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Kings Thursday sold left winger Bill Lesuk to the new National Hockey League expansion team, the Washington Capitals.

A team spokesman said terms of the sale were not made public.

Lesuk has been used as a backup forward in his three years with the Kings. Appearing in 35 games last season, he scored two goals and had one assist.

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Earl Anthony, Tacoma, Wash., maintained a comfortable margin over runnerup Larry Laub, Santa Rosa, Calif., on this week's official money standings list of the Professional Bowlers Association.

Anthony has earned $68,855 in 21 PBA events so far this year, while Laub, shut out of the money along with Anthony in last week's New Jersey Open, has earned $57,735.

Third place is held by Jim Stefanich, Joliet, Ill., with $53,190.

Carmen Salvino of Chicago moved up to 12th place on the list—the biggest jump of the week—after winning the $5,000 first prize in New Jersey.

The PBA tour moves to Buffalo, N.Y., this week for the $50,000 Home Box Office Open beginning Friday.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Monroe Brooks, 137, of Los Angeles, scored a third-round knockout over Venezuela's Lino Cordero, 132 ½, Thursday night.

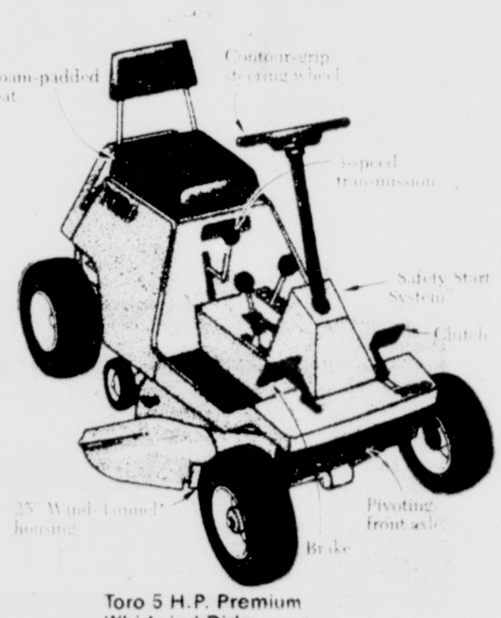

Brooks sent his opponent down for a mandatory eight count in the second round. In the third, Brooks was swarming over Cordero when referee Chuck Hassett awarded Brooks the knockout at 2:01.

Brooks improved his record to 23-1-2, while Cordero is 19-7.

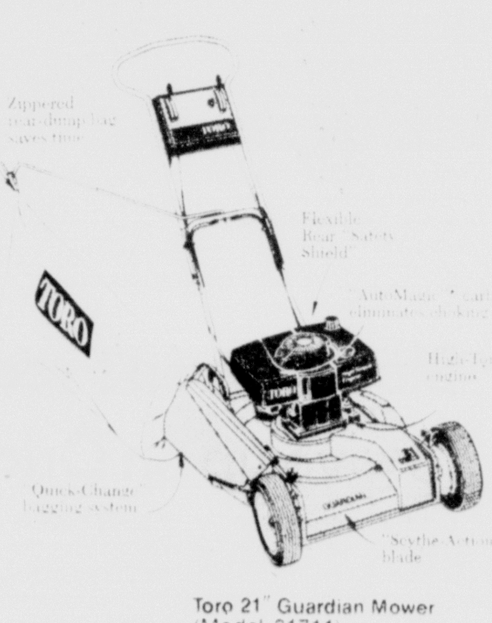

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers Thursday traded Vic Washington, who crossed the NFL Players Association picket line but was dismissed from camp by coach Dick Nolan, to Houston in exchange for the Oilers' No. 1 draft choice in 1976 and a third round pick in 1977.

Chargers trade Ron Smith

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The San Diego Chargers traded veteran strong safety Ron Smith Thursday to the Oakland Raiders for undisclosed 1975 draft choices.

Smith, the league leader in four kick return categories last season, joined the Chargers from Chicago in 1973.

The Chargers also announced that veteran linebacker Rick Redman had cleared waivers and was a free agent.

Five Chics tops Los Alamitos feature

LOS ALAMITOS — Five Chics, named California's top gelding in 1973, and six others will clash tonight at Los Alamitos in a grueling 549-yard headliner which kicks off a big weekend of quarter horse racing that will be completed Saturday night with the 20th running of the $100,000 Los Alamitos Championship.

Post time both Friday and Saturday nights is 7 p.m. for the night's first race.

Five Chics was purchased earlier this summer by Robert Spreen but will be making only his sixth start of the summer season when he faces Marble Man, Tita Mia, A Goin' Man, One Bold Broad, Big Canyon and Vinewin in the $5,000 event.

Five Chics, part of the D. Wayne Lukas Stable, was the second fastest qualifier to the $92,700 Vessels Maturity but stumbled coming out of the gate and had to settle for fifth in the 4-year-old event.

The War Chic gelding finished second in both the $50,000 Juvenile here as a 2-year-old in 1972 and the $106,000 El Primero Del Ano Derby here as a 3-year-old in 1973.

A winner of more than $65,000, Five Chics has won nearly $16,000 this year, running fourth last week in the $10,000 Vandy's Flash. Robert Adair will be aboard Five Chics, who races with Vinewin as part of the Spreen-owned entry.

Big Canyon, suffering through a dismal summer which has produced eight straight losing races after a successful winter meeting which included a victory in a division of the $15,000-added 49'er stakes.

Considered one of the top 549-yard horses in the west, Big Canyon, a son of Dusty Canyon, has finished in the money in five of his eight summer starts, including a third behind Amber Due in a 440-yard dash in his most recent start. Trainer Larry Kleve will ride Kenneth Hart in this event.

Marble Man, a 7-year-old son of Rocket Bar, has won only one of 16 races this year but has earned more than $11,000 while finishing in the money in 11 of those 16 attempts.

In his last 549-yard start, Marble Man ran third behind American Dream in the Thoroughbred Jockey Invitational after winning the same race in 1973. Jimmy Dreyer will do the riding on Marble Man for trainer Richard McArthur.

Knee injury sidelines Cox

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies said Wednesday night that catcher Larry Cox will be out for the remainder of the season with a torn ligament in his left knee.

The Phils recalled cather Jim Essian from their Toledo farm club where he was hitting .283 with five homers and 23 RBIs.

Cox, 26, suffered the knee injury in Tuesday night's game when he collided with the Giants' Bobby Bonds at home plate.

King and queen of 3-year-olds face each other

By United Press International

Little Current and Chris Evert, king and queen of the 3-year-old division, clash at Saratoga Saturday in the 105th running of the $100,000 added Travers Stakes. The race may decide the divisional championship.

It will mark the first time in a dozen years that a filly challenged colts in the "Midsummer Derby". In 1962 Cicada raced against Jaipur and Ridan in the 1¼ mile race only to finish last in the worst race of her career.

Ten thoroughbreds are expected to start, including Holding Pattern, who beat Little Current in the Monmouth Invitational two weeks ago. Chris Evert also was second in her last effort after winning the Acorn, the Mother Goose, the Coaching Club American Oaks and a match race with Miss Musket on the west coast.

Even though Chris Evert was beaten by Quaze Quilt in the Alabama Stakes last Saturday, trainer Joe Trovato feels she is ready for the Travers. He will breeze her Friday morning, however, and enter her if he is satisfied with the workout.

Sea Songster, Hatchet Man, T V Newscaster, Menocal, Sharp Gary, Kin Run and Gold and Myrrh also are expected to start.

Handicap horses get a shot at a $100,000 purse in the Hobson Stakes at Liberty Bell. Forego and True Knight declined the issue, leaving Hey Rube as the probable favorite in the 1⅛ mile event. Others entered are Mo Bay, Finalista, Infuriator, Convoy 2nd, First Asttronaut, Ecole Etage, Jet to Damascus, Rastaferian, Free Hand, Big City Blues and Sherby.

Fillies and mares take over at Arlington Park in the $50,000 Matron Handicap. Twixt, the nation's leading handicap mare was assigned high weight of 121 pounds in the 1-⅛ mile race but remained in the east. She, too, was second in her last race, finishing a length behind Kristin in the $114,700 Delaware Handicap at Delaware Park last Sunday. A field of 14 entered the race, with Sixty Sails high weight at 121.

Little Current, Chris Evert and Twixt all were invited to compete in the $250,000 Marlboro Cup on Sept. 16, which probably will decide Horse of the Year. Each was beaten in its last starts.

Big Whippendeal, under 118 pounds, is expected to top the field for the $35,000 Philadelphia Turf Handicap at Monmouth Park.

Seventeen fillies and mares were entered in the $15,000 Osunitas Stakes at Del Mar and the 1 1-16 mile turf race was split. Kamadora heads the first division under 122 pounds. Ready Wit, Mythical Summer and Sweet Greek each carry 117 in the second.

Biomass: future energy source?

Growing plants appear to offer an economic means of converting the sun's rays to usable energy, according to a National Science Foundation study by Stanford Research Institute (SRI).

Dr. Robert Inman, manager of SRI's Plant Biology Program and energy economist, John Alich, point out that certain types of plants, such as sunflower, sugarcane, eucalyptus and sycamore, could be produced in high enough yields to make them promising as alternatives to conventional sources of fuel as well as for other uses.

Sometimes referred to as biomass or "young coal," plant tissue can be burned directly as a fuel or converted to synthetic fuel gas or oil. The researchers note that biomass has the advantage over many Eastern coals of being low in sulfur content. Moreover, some biomass-derived synthetic fuels would be only slightly more costly than similar coal-derived synthetic fuels even today. For example, power generation using direct firing of biomass would cost only about 1 mil per kilowatt-hour more than power from a similar coal facility. However, the biomass plant would require a land area of 245 square miles on which to cultivate the biomass and would consume about 400 billion gallons of water per year.

The researchers predict that in the long term, as coal supplies are expended and prices increase, biomass could become a major energy feedstock. They note that biomass conversion today is definitely less expensive than electric power from conventional solar energy sources such as photovolatic cells or other solar thermal schemes.

In the near term, they add, the high yields obtainable with biomass could make it attractive for such uses as firewood, the production of alcohol for use as a gasoline additive, as well as for paper production. However, further research is needed to evaluate these options.

The researchers point out that a farm or farms about the size of Wyoming could produce enough synthetic gas to meet the total current U.S. consumption of natural gas. They note that 30 dry tons of biomass could be produced each year from an acre of land at an estimated cost of $9.72 per ton. The average heating value of this biomass would be around 15 million British thermal units per dry ton, compared with 22 million for coal.

The energy output from a biomass farm would be approximately 18 times as great as the energy input, assuming an adequate supply of water.

The biggest problem with cultivating biomass or land plantations is water availability and management. The best plantations for the purpose would be located in the Southwestern U.S., typically 1500 miles or more from water supplies. But of course it would be necessary to provide water by some process such as interbasin water transfer from a water-surplus region.

An alternative would be to cultivate biomass in water plantations. However, currently land plantations appear to be preferable because the technology for terrestrial farming is more advanced.

A promising alternative source of biomass is biological material left over after harvesting conventional crops. According to the report, roughly 30 percent of the nation's current natural gas demand could be satisfied by converting all existing agricultural residues to synthetic gas. However, cash uses have already been found for much of this material. Moreover, being diffusely distributed, it would have to be collected and transported to a conversion plant, which might price it out of the market. Therefore, further research is needed to clarify advantages and disadvantages of this concept. SRI is currently undertaking a study for the National Science Foundation's Research Applied to National Needs Program evaluating agricultural and forest product residue as well as manure as a feedstock for energy conversion.

Bedding fall plants

Autumn in many states is the signal for an end to gardening. In California, on the other hand, it's the sign another spring is approaching. Some plants may be going out of bloom, but others are just starting. For each shrub that threatens to go dormant, another is still fresh as a Daisy.

It is a time for color in many California gardens. Not the color of dying voliage but that of late Dahlias and Chrysanthemums, perennial Asters and early Camellias. And there are those cheerful standbys for any season — the bedding plants. Plant them now and you can have their color to brighten your late summer and early fall garden. Members of the California Association of Nurserymen have bedders that should warm the heart of any fall gardener.

A planting of Dwarf Marigolds will bring its reward of color before summer is out. Likewise an edging of Petunias or a bed of Zinnias in full sun. Where it's cool, as in some coastal areas, Zinnias need planting in the sunniest spot against a heat-reflecting wall for best performance.

The button-size puffs of blue Ageratum are cheerfulness itself in late summer and fall while the sprawling brightness of Verbena and the starry delicacy of Lobelia can still be had if you hurry and plant.

To insure plenty of fall color, check with your local CAN nursery for bedding plants. The supply at nurseries now is as varied as California's climate. When most of the nation is looking to fall and winter, you can be looking for a colorful continuation of spring.

Build-it-yourself

How to make a swinger

By STEVE ELLINGSON

One of life's simplest pleasures is to swing and sway in the summer breeze. You can swing and read. . . swing and chat with friends. . .swing and relax in the cool of the evening with that after-dinner coffee. Swinging, like rocking, is a therapeutic motion of the body that smooths away the cares of the day.

The hanging swing pictured here with actress Beverly Adams is designed to be used in all sorts of places. It may be hung out on your porch or from the patio roof or carport. If you have a large shady tree in your yard (with overhanging branches) use it there. It's light in weight and very comfortable. The seat is suspended on a chain and can be easily raised, lowered, or tilted back to suit your needs.

You will find this to be a very easy project when you use our full-size and illustrated pattern. All you have to do is trace the pattern on wood, saw out the parts and finally put them together. The pattern lists the required materials and has lots of easy-to-understand illustrations. The cost, when you do-it-yourself, is very little. Simple tools are all you need. Except for the paint, it can be completed in one evening.

To obtain the full-size Hanging Swing Pattern No. 288, send $1.25 (includes postage and handling). If airmail is desired, send $1.50 by cash, check or money order to:

Ask Dr. Brothers

Plans new pattern

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I've become a mother of two children and am trying to remold my life and theirs to fit an entirely new pattern. Their parents, my sister and her husband, were killed in an automobile accident a short time ago and since then I've been caring for the children.

They're going to have to enter a new school this fall and I've been debating whether or not to follow their former teacher's advice. According to her, while both children are very bright, each has had a tough time trying to keep up because they had been pushed ahead of their age group. I don't want to create any more problems for the children, but on the other hand, the teacher feels they would be happier if they were put back one semester so they can be with others their own age, emotionally, intellectually and chronologically.—L.M.

Dear L.M.: I'd be inclined to follow their former teacher's advice in this matter; however, I'd also discuss it with the children and see what their attitude is. If you do discuss it with them it's very important to stress the positive aspects of the plan, rather than making it appear that they are being held back as a punishment, or because the new grade is two difficult for them. Stress the fact that their teacher believes it is better for children to be with others their own age, when possible.

This will be a traumatic year for them and since they've already suffered a major loss, it would be wise to try to avoid any further pressures at school. They will need all the help and understanding they can get from you and from their new schoolmates.

Dr. George Fidone, a pediatrician for the U.S. Air Force, believes that, often, parents who enroll their precocious children in school before the usual starting age invite academic failure. Children who are pushed ahead often fall behind later in their school life. He feels the same holds true for youngsters who barely meet the age requirement and are a year younger than many of their classmates. Unfortunately, he says, too often, the child's academic abilities are below his grade placement. Overplacement is one of the principal causes of school failure.

Any change of neighborhood causes pressures in a child's life and this is reflected in his ability to learn and perform at school. It will take many years for the children to fully accept the loss of their parents and this will be a major cause of stress for some time. This, too, is obviously bound to have an effect upon their school adjustment. If you can help prepare them for the new school and for entering with their own age group even if it means repeating one semester, it might be very helpful to them. Try to discuss this matter with someone at the new school and get a second point of view.

It is important to encourage the children to express the feelings freely so that they can talk openly about their parents and about what this great loss means to them. Many people mistakenly assume that by avoiding any mention of the deceased person they are being kind to the one who suffers the loss. This is actually not so.

In this situation, you have suffered the loss of a sister. You and the children may find comfort in each other by sharing your grief. Grief is a natural emotion and all individuals need a certain period of time to heal their wounds and adjust to the loss of a loved one. The children should know that this is a natural, healthy reaction. You can all help each other in this and if they can help you, it will help them.

Federal women organize

The newly organized Federally Employed Women, Inc. (FEW) at Naval Plant Representative. Pomona has chosen its chapter name and elected officers.

Purpose of the organization is to take action to end discrimination of women in government service; to improve the merit system in government employment; to aid government employes and applicants for employment who are in need of assistance.

Adelante (Marching Forward) was chosen as the chapter name. Mrs. Fred Smith of coordinator of the chapter organization.

Officers for the year are Mrs. John Stevens, president; Mrs. Sam Powers, vice president; Mrs. T. Buechel, secretary; Mrs. J. Pigg, recording secretary; Mrs. Bernard Spaulding, treasurer; Mrs. Jack McKinney, program chairman; Mrs. Henry Gunski, membership chairman; Miss June Callaway, bylaws; and Mrs. Margaret Page, publicity chairman.

The next meeting of the chapter will be Sept. 19 at 4:30 p.m.

TODAY'S Women

Smeltzer and Jester vows are exchanged

Margaret Jester and John C. Smeltzer of Claremont were married during an informal wedding service at Red Hill Country Club in Cucamonga. Judge Clifton Allen performed the single-ring rites.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Steinfelt of Van Nuys, wore a gown of white marquisette over satin with a portrait neckline and long full sleeves. Appliques of lace accented the gown.

She wore baby's breath in her hair and carried a nosegay of daisies and baby's breath.

Mrs. Winnie van Wijk of Pine, Colo. was matron of honor. Serving as best man was Robert O. Jones of Ontario. Also attending were the groom's children, John Jr. and Kristy.

Music for the reception was provided by Lou and Anita Catalano's band.

Mr. and Mrs. Smeltzer will reside in Claremont.

The bride is an insurance adjuster for Northwestern National Insurance Company.

The groom is owner of Klopfenstein and Smeltzer Insurance Agency in Pomona. He is a member of the board of directors of LeRoy's Boys Home and a member of Red Hill and Bermuda Dunes Country Clubs.

New book of sewing instructions available

Fads in fashion follow one another. The Indian maiden look follows the mini and is in turn followed by poor boy, rich girl or unisex nautical.

Other styles never reach the "high" style but somehow are always freshly appealing and flattering.

The fourth volume in the TIME-LIFE "Traditional Favorites" Books series, "The Art of Sewing," describes how old-but-new accents can be added to clothing and home furnishings.

The book contains instructions for patchwork, applique and quilting. Crewel, needlepoint, knitting and crochet are other needle skills included in the book.

There are also step-by-step directions for preparing ruffles, for smocking and tucking which, in the main, eliminate hard work. There are also adaptations of traditional necklines, collars, sleeves and peplums.

The book, distributed by Little, Brown & Co., is priced at $8.95 and is available at area book stores.

Writer's Club slates meeting, gives awards

The annual social gathering of Pomona Valley Writer's Club is to be held at 11247 Greenwood Way, Ontario, at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday.

There will be no contests for the meeting, but members may bring their works for reading. Directions to the home and further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. A.U. Tschoepe, 982-0757.

At the July session the fiction contest was won by Lillian Cubberly for her entry "Almost Buried Alive."

Other entries were "Benji's Star," by Joan Copeland; "Encounter with the Red Ghost," by Florence Swanson; "How To Rob a Bank-by Fat Eddy," witten by Stan Baum; "Behind Every Cloud and Ill Wind Blows Rain," by Gale Donahue, and "Duplication Machine," by Betty Shorr.

Gale Donahue took honors in the poetry contest with her entry of "Words of Love." Other peotry was presented by Florence Lovgren, Calrol Ann Cook, Lillian Cubberly and Kit Vargo.

For the third consecutive month Gale Donahue won the non-fiction contest and was awarded the club trophy. Her winning entry was "Something Is Up There," an account of unexplained occurrence at a Cahokia, Ill., farmhouse.

Other non-fiction entries were entered by Elmer Kooiman and Carol Ann Cook.

The club meets on the third Tuesday of each month at the Ontario Public Library and is open to any valley resident.

Urges dialogue

Flournoy says Brown 'phantom candidate'

GLENDORA (UPI) — Republican gubernatorial nominee Houston Flournoy today labelled Edmund G. Brown Jr. the "phantom candidate" and called on him to engage in a "flesh-and-blood" dialogue on issues.

Flournoy charged that Brown, the Democratic nominee for governor, fails to make live appearances and campaigns instead with press releases and electronic devices.

In a speech prepared for the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs here, Flournoy charged that "rather than flesh-and-blood appearances, he (Brown) has chosen to be a disembodied voice floating out through a maze of telephone wires, tape recorders and other machinery."

"What we need now is a new dialogue," he said. "Not one of strident partisanship of attack and accusation; rather an honest examination of the important issues that face Californians."

Flournoy called Brown the "phantom candidate" and criticized him for failing to accept an offer to appearance jointly with Flournoy on the California network of CBS radio stations.

"We have agreed to six debates or joint appearances this fall, but that may be it," Flournoy said.

France vies with U.S. for warplane contract

By ARTHUR HERMAN

PARIS (UPI) — The French government is in the midst of a campaign aimed at beating the United States out of billions of dollars in warplane sales.

French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing has sent one of his top officials, Premier Jacques Chirac, to Copenhagen to help win what the Paris newspaper Le Monde calls "the weapons contract of the century."

The French and Americans are competing for the chance to provide Denmark, Holland, Norway and Belgium with between 300 and 400 warplanes to replace U.S. F104 Starfighters bought more than 10 years ago.

The French are pushing the Mirage F1 fighter while the United States has two entries in the competition —Northrop's F17 and General Dynamic's F16.

"I think that from the political point of view the Mirage comes out looking good because it is a European plane and it is thus a question of a European program," a French aviation official said recently.

Newsmen traveling with Chirac to Copenhagen said "the principal subject" of his talks was France's attempt to fill Denmark's share of the warplane package with 60 Mirage jets.

The French company Dassault-Breguet, which builds the Mirage, was offering the Europeans an improved version of the F1, which has been sold in recent years to Greece, Spain and Kuwait.

"I think that we have technical trumps," a Dassault spoksman recently said. "We have an excellent plane. It has always proved itself. It is more adapted to the needs expressed by the European countries."

The Dassault official said U.S. planes "are more adopted to American needs," but Pentagon officials insist the Mirage cannot match the acceleration and maneuverability of its American competitors.

U.S. arms salesman have one big help in pushing their planes —a lowered price tag because of the continued weakness of the dollar in European money markets.

The Dassault spokesman refused to guess when the European nations would make their decision, but he predicted the issue of fighter sales would be "a very hot question this fall."

Bleak future seen for Colorado River Basin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interior Department's water management experts fear "significant water shortages" by the year 2,000 in the Upper Colorado River Basin.

Water supplies were studied there because of prospects of development of coal and oil shale deposits in Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, New Mexico and Arizona, a spokesman said Wednesday.

Such energy production developments guzzle water in enormous quantities and in the five state area over 30 major energy development projects are in operation, under construction, or in planning and these will require the diversion of water for agriculture.

"The surface water supply in the upper basin is already overappropriated, especially in Colorado and Utah," the department said.

"Demands for water for other uses such as municipal and industrial, agriculture and environmental purposes are also expected to increase greatly," the department said. "These competing uses in the area could result in significant water shortages by the year 2,000."

The department recommended that the states begin evaluation and planning.

Must show dog ears for bounty

MUNISING, Mich. (UPI) — Officials want their county dog warden to clip an ear off each dog he kills before he collects a bounty.

"We gotta have proof," said John Helsel, a member of the Alger County Board of Commissioners.

The proposal surfaced recently at the monthly board meeting after dog warden Earl Rowley presented a bill for $488 for 53 dogs he killed during June and July.

State law prohibits the warden from keeping a stray dog more than seven days. Rowley is paid $2 a day for keeping each dog and $3 when he kills it.

Helsel said details about which ear to keep and where to keep it will be ironed out at the September meeting. He said Rowley would get a receipt for each ear.

"We've got to keep these things straight," he said. "When we get our books audited, we've gotta show where the money's gone to."

A MESSAGE TO CLASSIFIED AD USERS

You are about to invest money for an Ad and you are entitled to get results. To accomplish this it is necessary for you to TELL ALL about the details of your offer. Be sure you don't make any of the following errors that prevent results. Readers can't guess on important details. Remember, a well written informative ad will get results faster and cost less in the long run.

1. Don't Omit The Address
Many out-of-town readers will write you but will not spend money for a long distance call.

2. Don't Omit The Phone Number
Many readers will call you but do not find it convenient to come to your home.

3. Don't Use Blind Box Numbers
Avoid them if at all possible. They are difficult to answer and many people are suspicious of them.

4. Don't Conceal The Price
Surveys show that a high percentage of readers will not answer an ad unless the price is given.

5. Don't Leave Home On The Days You Advertise
Many good prospects will not call the second time if your phone is unanswered.

BUDGET BONANZA
"THE PROFESSIONALS"

DON'T RENT $12,500
when you can buy this sharp two bedroom home for such a modest price and small down payment. Your low monthly payments, less than rent, will be building your equity and supplying a deduction for your income tax. It's an ideal arrangement for a small family of limited means. Some lucky person will buy it soon—why not you? Let's go see it today.

LOW PRICE, HIGH VALUE $16,500
This two bedroom budget beauty is an ideal starter home in a good area for a fantastically low price. It has a large fenced yard with shade trees, and there is a separate laundry room. A terrific value like this can't possibly last long especially with all terms available. Better phone us right away!

SCHOOLS ARE CLOSE $18,500
This conveniently located three bedroom (plus den), 1¾ bath, 1400 sq. ft. family home is within easy walking distance of three schools: elementary, junior high and high. There's a fireplace in the living room and a covered patio out back. It's all in extra sharp, move-in condition and the owner will help with the financing and most all terms. Why wait? The time to call is now!
